ENGLAND FEARS FOR FUTURE

France Enjoys Prosperity While Germany Faces Ruin.

WHAT MELLON FOUND ABROAD

Secretary of Treasury Declares Europe as a Whole is Fundamentally Sound Except For the Ruhr Dispute, and Predicts the Reparations Deadlock Will Be Broken Before Winter—Confers With Coolidge.

Washington, Aug. 21.—France prospers while England fears for the future and Germany faces ruin. Europe as a whole is fundamentally sound except for the Ruhr dispute. The reparations deadlock will be broken before winter.

Such was the substance of the report on old world conditions presented to President Coolidge in a long conference at the White House by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, chairman of the American world war foreign debt commission.

Mr. Mellon's conclusions as the result of six weeks passed in studying conditions abroad may be summarized as follows:

1. France is prosperous, although her policy is weakening her credit.
2. England fears for the future of world trade, upon which she relies for her economic existence and blames the deadlock in the Ruhr.
3. Germany confronts the prospect of communistic uprisings and disintegration of the empire, but could still function if permitted to do so.
4. There is not a gleam of light looking toward a solution of the reparations controversy, but the problem must be worked out. The settlement of the Ruhr deadlock will remove the last obstacle in the way of a general improvement.
5. There is nothing the United States can do, nor could have done, to bring about a solution, which must be worked out by the people immediately involved.

With regard to foreign debts owed the United States, Mr. Mellon feels that, officially at least, conditions remain exactly as they were before he went abroad. No French official suggested steps to fund the obligation of the Paris government.

The secretary was particularly impressed by conditions in France, which were the best that have prevailed there in many years. The crops were good and the country was self-sustaining, both fundamental conditions of prosperity. He found no unemployment, and work in the devastated region was going rapidly forward. Business in France was good. In the automobile industry, for example, Mr. Mellon found that no manufacturer could make deliveries within four months of the date of an order.

On reparations and the Ruhr Mr. Mellon found the French most rigid in their stand, with the financial interests strongly supporting the politicians in the government. Having failed to accomplish the ostensible purpose of the Ruhr invasion, France, he learned, still maintains that she will be able to work out her own solution.

Mr. Mellon does not believe that the German government intentionally drove down the mark in order to wipe out its debt and defeat reparations. Germany, he feels, was in need of food and raw materials and was without funds to make purchases abroad. The tendency of the mark was downward and the government could not have stopped it.

Giant Mail Planes Start Today.

New York, Aug. 21.—Giant planes, each loaded with 500 pounds of mail, will leave New York and San Francisco today, aiming to cross the continent in 28 hours. Although experimental, the flights are expected to mark the opening of daily mail service between the two oceans that will be added to as the demand for rapid mail delivery grows. There will be stops at Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Salt Lake City and Reno, Nev.

Firpo on Exhibition.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 21.—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, who will meet Jack Dempsey Sept. 14, now shares honors with racing greyhounds as the attraction at the Atlantic park, with admission of $1.10 for both features. Firpo opened training quarters at the park, where a 60-day dog racing season is under way, agreeing to make an afternoon and night performance before the grandstand every day until Sept. 12.

EARLY RULING LIKELY

State Supreme Court to Pass Upon Status of Taft Taxation Act.

Columbus, Aug. 21.—Early action is to be had in the suit brought in supreme court to determine the status of the Taft taxation law and the referendum which has been invoked against it. Chief Justice C. T. Marshall assigned the suit for argument on Sept. 27, two days after the return of the seven judges of the court from their summer vacation.

The suit was brought by John E. McCrehen, president of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards, following an attempt on the part of Secretary of State Thad H. Brown to exercise his constitutional office in determining whether the referendum petitions met the legal requirements. Brown was prevented from proceeding through a writ of prohibition issued by the chief justice. Later officials of the Cincinnati chamber of commerce brought suit also to require Brown to exercise his authority to determine the validity of the referendum petitions.

It is the purpose of the chief justice to determine the question in time to permit the referendum to be submitted at the November election in the event it is upheld by the court.

CONFEREES HIT ANOTHER SNAG

Anthracite Mine Workers Demand Increase of Wages.

UNYIELDING ATTITUDE SHOWN

Suspension of Mining Seems More Imminent Now Than at Any Other Time Since Negotiations Began. Operators of Department of Justice on the Scene—Statements by Lewis and Warriner.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 21.—With operators of the United States department of justice on the scene in quest of information regarding the probability of a strike in the hard coal fields, Sept. 1, the anthracite wage conference struck another snag.

Despite the government intervention which brought miners and operators together again, a suspension of mining seems more imminent now than at any other time since the negotiations began.

The question of increased wages was added to the growing list of demands on which the operators and miners not only fail to agree, but show an absolutely unyielding attitude. The miners have asked for an increase of twenty per cent for contract miners and $2 a day for day workers.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, declared that not only could this increase be absorbed by the operators without adding it to the price of coal, but insisted that for the past three years the operators have been collecting from the public $30,000,000 a year which has been added to the price of coal in 1920 for the purpose of paying a greater increase in wages than was granted in that year. Samuel D. Warriner, spokesman for the operators, denied that the operators increased the price of coal in 1920 sufficiently to meet the wage increases granted that year. He insisted that to grant the present demand of the miners on the matter of wage increases alone would add at least $2 per ton to the mine cost of coal.

During the conference, Mr. Lewis insisted that the miners must be granted a substantial pay increase in order to meet the increasing cost of living, and also equalize pay in the anthracite and bituminous fields. The much discussed question of the check-off, on which the miners and operators are now deadlocked was not mentioned during the discussions. Mr. Lewis made it plain, however, that the laying aside temporarily of this question had no significance and indicated that this troublesome question would have to be settled before an agreement is reached.

CALLS IN HAMMOND

President Coolidge Has Further Conference on Coal Situation.

Washington, Aug. 21.—President Coolidge called in Chairman John Hays Hammond, of the United States coal commission, for a further conference on the coal situation. At the conclusion of the conference Chairman Hammond said the president had discussed with him further plans for dealing with the coal issue in event the miners and operators are unable to reach an agreement at the joint conference at Atlantic City. The government will be prepared for eventualities, he declared. Chairman Hammond indicated that there will be no interference by the commission for ten days, unless it became apparent in the meantime that no agreement could be reached. Both sides, he said, will be given every opportunity to work out a solution before the present contract expires Sept. 1.

Three Drown.
Cincinnati, Aug. 21.—Three persons drowned in the Ohio river in the vicinity of Cincinnati. They were: Edward Beck, 26, North Bend, drowned near Andersons Ferry; Joseph Seas, 21, drowned at Fernbank dam; Frank Muenich, 18, drowned at the foot of Foster street, east end.

Shoots Wife and Self.
Toledo, Aug. 21.—Harry Brown, ex-army officer, shot and fatally wounded his wife, Mrs. Jennie Brown, here, in the presence of one of their two children. Brown then turned the gun on himself. He is in a serious condition. Mrs. Brown died in a hospital. She recently sued for divorce.

Organist Killed.
Toledo, Aug. 21.—Catherine Menke, 16, organist in St. Rose's church, Perrysburg, was killed in an automobile collision.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Klan Meetings Banned.
Steubenville, O., Aug. 21.—In an effort to prevent further outbreaks between members of the Ku Klux Klan and citizens, city council will be asked to pass an ordinance prohibiting all parades and public meetings until feeling between the factions subsides. Mayor Frank A. Hawkins, backed by Safety Director E. M. Geary and Police Chief Blaine Carter, has ordered that the proposed konklave and parade, scheduled for Thursday night, not be held.

Would Boost Car Fare.
Delaware, O., Aug. 21.—The Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric company, operating city streetcars here, will seek an increase in rates from 5 cents to 8 cents, two tickets for 15 cents, four for 25 cents, or weekly passes for $1. The company claims they operate the city line at a loss between $3,000 and $14,000 annually. The city council will be called upon to pass on the increase proposal.

Class of 174 to Graduate.
Columbus, Aug. 21.—Buckeyes predominated in the first summer graduating class at Ohio State university. Commencement is scheduled for Aug. 31 in the University chapel. Of 174 prospective graduates, 158 are from Ohio. The remaining 16, however, include representatives from eight other states and far away India and China.

Bullet Wounds May Prove Fatal.
Cleveland, Aug. 21.—Roy E. Gresham, 30, a broker, is in a hospital with two bullet wounds in the abdomen, which it is feared will prove fatal, the result of a shooting in his home at Lakewood. His brother-in-law, Joseph Herman, is held by police pending their completion of an investigation into the circumstances.

Former Judge Dead.
Urbana, O., Aug. 21.—David W. Todd, 87, former probate judge and former prosecuting attorney of Champaign county, died at his home here from infirmities of old age. Mr. Todd was a veteran of the Civil war, having been lieutenant colonel of the 134th Ohio volunteer infantry.

Truck Struck Plank.
Warren, O., Aug. 21.—Howard Bortz, 40, of Warren, was fatally injured near Niles. His truck struck a plank, hurling it into the car, injuring his leg. He died from loss of blood.

Car Overturned.
Akron, O., Aug. 21.—E. J. Schaffer, 37, a business man of this city, was killed and his son-in-law, Thomas A. Knatt and Mrs. Knatt were seriously injured when their car overturned while driving through Gary, Ind.

Lad Loses Life.
Lima, O., Aug. 21.—Clarence Kuntz, 10, of Wapakoneta, was drowned while swimming with three other boys in an abandoned stone quarry near Blueick, about eight miles from Lima.

Cut Throat With a Penknife.
Chillicothe, O., Aug. 21.—Martin Rupp, 80, who cut his throat with a penknife, died in the city hospital here. Ill health was given as the cause for the suicide.

BARNES HEADS DELEGATION

Big Business Tells the President What It Wants.

SEEKS REVISION OF TAX LAWS

Opposes Any Form of Government Ownership or Operation of Railroads or Mines and Would Have Government Get Out of Shipping Business—Favors Freer Flow of Immigrants to This Country.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Big business called at the white house and was closeted with President Coolidge for an hour.

The delegation, headed by Julius H. Barnes, president of the United States chamber of commerce, included a half dozen other leaders of that organization and the international chamber of commerce.

The callers admitted, after the conference, that they told President Coolidge what big business wants from his administration along domestic lines. They did not say what they told him they wanted as a foreign policy.

Organized business wants a general revision of federal taxation, with a lowering of the super income and profits taxes. The president was told the present tax laws are driving capital into unproductive investments. A readjustment along the lines proposed, they argued, would encourage investment in industry and release money into trade that is now tied up in tax exempt securities to escape taxation.

Big business wants the government to get out and stay out of business. The president was told the government should get entirely out of the shipping business and permit the return of the merchant marine to private ownership and operation. For a week the president has been giving close study to a merchant marine policy, with frequent conferences with members of the shipping board.

Any form of government ownership, operation or control of railroads was beyond the present limitations of the interstate commerce commission and the transportation acts. "Permissible" consolidation of railroads into regional systems along lines outlined a year ago by the interstate commerce commission was approved as a general proposition. Government ownership, operation or control of coal mines and other essential resources is opposed by organized business, the same as it opposes governmental control of land and water transportation.

The setting up of a separate board to manipulate the present sliding scale tariff act was asked for. This work now is being done by the tariff commission.

Drastic restrictions on immigration were approved, but big business asked for a freer flow of foreign people into this country than the present immigration law permits. It was proposed that the 3 per cent quota limit now in effect be raised to 5 per cent. This would add approximately a third of a million immigrants a year to supply the demand for more industrial workers.

WIRES FOR FUNDS

Carson, Companion of Clara Phillips, Has a Story to Uncover.

New York, Aug. 21.—Jesse C. Carson, companion of Clara Phillips, the Los Angeles "hammer murderer," in her adventures in Honduras that ended in her recapture, sits twiddling his thumbs nervously in a West Side hotel here wondering when his funds are coming from California. Carson, who is long and lean and whose hair is red, is full of revolutionary conversation, but when Clara is mentioned he is silent. He says he has wired for funds to Los Angeles to get him back to the land of oranges, and when he gets there he will uncover a story that he avers will be a "wow."

He is going to make things hot for the American minister in Honduras, among other things, he says.

Boys Disappear From School.
Chicago, Aug. 21.—Eighteen boys have mysteriously disappeared from the Chicago parental school, according to charges made during an investigation of the conduct of the school. The investigation was held in criminal court before Judge Michael J. Kinley, chief justice. It was launched after James Wright, a 14-year-old inmate, was found hanging in a cell. Whether the boy committed suicide or was killed and strung up is to be determined by the court.

BIG RACE ASSURED

English Derby Winner to Go Against America's Best.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 21.—The great international $100,000 thoroughbred race is on. Papyrus, winner of England's famous classic, the Epsom derby, will meet an American 3-year-old which will be picked through the medium of a test race race on Oct. 20 at Belmont park, New York.

The final arrangements for the event, certain to be of world-wide interest, were concluded by a cablegram by Major August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey club of New York.

The race will be under the auspices of the Jockey club, and it will be run over the mile and half route. The winner will receive $80,000 and the loser $20,000.

OVERTURES MADE TO WILL H. HAYS

Coolidge Men Urge Him as Republican Manager.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Will H. Hays again is being seriously considered for his old job as chairman of the Republican national committee when reorganization is effected for the 1924 campaign.

Definite overtures have been made to him, it was learned, to give up his position as director general of the movie interests and get back into the political game as the Republican manager. These overtures have come from Coolidge boosters, who already are laying wires to land the nomination for the president.

It is not the first time Hays has been mentioned for return to the chairmanship, which he gave up when he became postmaster general in the Harding cabinet. The late president had him in mind before he started on his ill-fated western trip. At that time New York was urging Charles D. Hilles, who managed the Taft campaign in 1912, and Harding thought well of him, too, although Hays was believed to be his first choice.

There are several reasons why some of the Coolidge boosters believe the selection of Hays would be a stroke of political sagacity. In the first place Hays is from Indiana. Secondly, Indiana is likely to be a "pivot" state. Hays, it is believed, could do more in reconciling the factions of Republicans in Indiana than anyone else who might be chosen for the chairmanship.

Sheriff Slain.

Brookville, Ind., Aug. 21.—Sheriff William Van Camp of Franklin county, was shot to death by two automobile bandits, eight miles east of here. The bandits were in an automobile, believed stolen. It bore an Ohio license. They shot the sheriff when he attempted to stop them to examine the machine.

Value of a High Aim.
A glorious aim reacts in vitalizing ministry upon the entire being. It is curative. A big holy aim is very hostile to the petty ailments of the mind, as it is also very destructive of the mean diseases of the heart. And through a healthier mind and heart we give ourselves a chance of more exuberant physical health. Perhaps it is true, in a larger way than we usually think, that "He shall quicken your mortal bodies by his spirit that dwelleth in you."

Opportunity to Be Seized.
A porter in London was engaged in cleaning a luggage van, when the door swung back, striking him violently on the head. "Oh! Pat," he exclaimed to an Irishman standing on the platform, "I believe I've cut open my head." "Well, begor, now's the time to get something into it," was Pat's witty reply.

ODD COMMUNITY BARS OUT WOMEN

Athos Peninsula in Greece Has One of the Strangest Governments in the World.

Washington.—"The Athos peninsula in Greece, to which the patriarch of Constantinople, head of the Greek church, has retired because of pressure from the Turkish government, is one of the queerest communities in the world," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.
"On the 200 odd square miles of this rough peninsula which lacks little of being an island, it has been unlawful since the year 1045 for a woman to set foot. Moreover, domestic animals are barred! Even the eggs and milk that the good monks of Athos eat and drink must come from farms safely across the border of the strange monastic republic.

Treasures of Byzantium.
"The entire peninsula is given up to monasteries of which there are 20, mostly on the slopes or cliffs of Mount Athos, the 6,350-foot promontory that rises near the outer end of the headland.
"There are one or more monasteries for each of the countries, or in some cases the communities that accept the Greek rite—Greece, Russia, Serbia, Bulgaria, Anatolia, Constantinople and many others.

"The monasteries are today one of the richest repositories of the illuminated manuscripts, statues, paintings, mosaics and other works of art produced in the heyday of that gilded eastern Rome.
"The monks of Mount Athos have traditions of the beginnings of their establishments as early as the days of Constantine the Great, about 300 A. D. But history tells of the foundation of the earliest of the present monasteries, that of Lavra, in 969. The latest was established in 1545, a century after the fall of Byzantium.

"The monasteries are in every conceivable situation; some on gentle slopes near the sea, some on lofty crags overhanging the beating surf, and others inland on shoulders of the sacred mountain. All consist of walled spaces in which are churches, chapels, dwelling houses or dormitories, guest abodes, libraries, and in the case of the establishments under a non-individualistic regime, refectories. The East has always been turbulent, and Mount Athos knows its east; so all the inclosures are fortified.

Has Queer Government.
"The government of Mount Athos has been republican in form for more than 800 years—since 1060, six years before the Normans conquered England. Each monastery elects a representative who is sent to the centrally situated village of Karyes, which is the capital. There the delegate occupies a dwelling owned by his abbey and constituting a sort of 'embassy' building.

"The twenty representatives sit as the most blessed assembly of the sacred mount, a parliament more venerable than that of London, if that body be dated from the recognition of the elective principle. The executive of Mount Athos is a body of five monks chosen by the monasteries voting in groups of four. Four of these executives each keeps in his custody a quarter of the great seal of the 'republic' and the fifth, the secretary, carries a handle which locks the fragments properly together."

Daughters Sue Father for Pay for Their Work

Kansas City, Mo.—Frederick Lieser, a Lafayette county farmer, is defendant in suits for remuneration for personal services filed by his daughters.

Edna Lieser, thirty-six, asks $10,000 as pay at $600 a year from the time she reached her eighteenth birthday.

Lena Lieser, fifty-four, asks $21,100 on the same basis, less $500 paid to her in cash in 1921.

Frederick Lieser, who is eighty-two years old, originally owned a 440-acre farm near Corder, Mo. The daughters say they were induced to remain on the farm and work on the promise that they would be paid and would be remembered in the father's will.

Recently Lieser sold 220 acres of the farm.

Ancient Coins Found at Foot of Mt. Etna

Rome.—Interesting relics in the form of two large brass vases filled with pieces of gold, and believed by experts to belong to a period 300 or 400 years B. C., have, by order of the government, been removed from Ognina, which is situated at the foot of Mount Etna, to Rome.

The vases were discovered in a fissure in the ground under an old wall, after a slight earthquake, by a deaf and dumb peasant. The news of the find only reached the authorities when the peasant offered the vases for sale to collectors.

Bulgaria Field for U. S. Trade.
Sofia, Bulgaria.—The American consul here believes Bulgaria offers an excellent market for manufactured articles of many kinds. He is Graham H. Kemper and he says the value of the market is evidenced by the desire of foreigners to share in it.

Spain Slightly Spanish.

There is a tango palace in Seville. If you buy a cup of coffee, a beer or a bottle of wine you can watch the dancing. If you wish to dance you may ask the girl at the next table. Guess how many of the girls are wearing Spanish saris or Spanish combs or mantillas? Not one. The same number of girls are wearing the hat-trimmed shiny black hats that Spanish girls invariably wear on the American stage. One thing Spanish about Spain, so far as observed, is the railroad service. There are about four express trains in the whole country. Beyond that, you travel at an average of ten to fifteen miles an hour. One train a day in each direction. No connections. Another thing Spanish I discovered was a lovely fan—those gay Spanish fans that are a part of the dances, you know. Of course, I bought it to take home for a present. It is really beautiful. Only I see on close examination that it's stamped "Made in Japan."—Exchange.

When Phil May Lost His Horse.
Phil May, the English black-and-white artist, was notoriously absent-minded. According to his colleague, Edwin Ward, he arrived one day at the Savage club on horseback and left his horse in charge of a club servant. After a time, the man holding the horse called the attention of the hall porter and asked if Mr. May was in the club. "No," said the porter, "he left an hour ago." The members were consulted and eventually the horse was put in a livery stable in the neighborhood. Several days elapsed and Phil again appeared at the club. "Most extraordinary thing," he said, "I've lost my horse. I started from home with it all right a few days ago, but for the life of me I can't remember what became of it." After a little they relieved his mind by producing the missing animal.

Make "Chamois" of Sheepskin.
The term "chamois" is a misnomer today; for although this leather was originally prepared from the skin of the chamois of southern Europe, it is now made from sheepskin, and the term refers to the process and not to the actual leather. The part of the sheep used for "chamois" is the underskin, which until recently was discarded as of no value. At one time doeskin was also used for making "chamois" gloves, but doeskin has a value of its own and is not often employed now in the preparation of chamois leather.—Manchester Guardian.

"Oil Birds" of Peru.

A band of outlaws have their home on the Huallaga river in Peru. There are no laws and no taxes, and most of the inhabitants are fugitive murderers. In this domain is the cave of the "oil birds." The cave is mammoth and as beautiful as those in fairy tales, much like a cathedral on the inside. Hundreds of thousands of birds have their home here. The young of the species are exceptionally fat, and the natives squeeze them and make something much like oil from them. The oil is used for everything from curing rheumatism to eating.

Work of Birds Indispensable.

The tree sparrow feeds chiefly on weed seed; the Baltimore oriole on caterpillars; the grackle is a "neutral bird," doing as much harm as good; the bobolink is almost entirely an insect feeder; there is no laboratory proof that the bluejay feeds extensively on other birds or their eggs; the kingbird has fondness for honey bees—and so on down the list of the government's investigations of the food habits of birds. Take away the birds and the crop growing fields and the orchards of this country would be so quickly overrun with insect plagues that their destruction would well nigh threaten famine.

Bird Couldn't Understand.

A cockatoo performed the service of acting as a fire alarm. Everybody, barring the cockatoo, was sound sleep, and when the smoke got into its eyes it screeched till it awoke the occupants of the house, and the fire escape did the rest. But, though the bird had given the warning of danger, it could not conceive what the danger was. It watched the proceedings with curiosity and indignation, and when it was seized, bundled out of a window and down a ladder it screamed, indignantly: "What's up with you all?"

Maybe She Sleeps Wednesdays.

A woman, no longer in the blush of her first youth, was trying to overcome the reluctance of a little girl to retire for the night. "Being six years old," she said, "you should go to bed at six. When you are seven you may stay up till seven, and when you are eight you will not have to retire till eight." The child gazed thoughtfully, with a mental arithmetic look, at the kindly face, with its crown of gray hair and remarked: "Then I suppose you never go to bed at all."—Toronto Globe.

Carajas a Testy People.

Although the Carajas of Brazil are a kindly-disposed people, with many simple and child-like qualities, they are quickly roused to wrath. If one displeases them, for instance, by being too sparing with one's gifts, they will mutter "Ebina, ebina" (it is very bad) to one another, and will crowd round one until, a little alarmed perhaps by their jostling and scowling, one forks out a liberal supply of presents; while to favor one and not another is as good as asking for trouble on the spot.—World Wide Magazine.

HOOOSIER
—the Kitchen Cabinet that saves miles of steps

—the Only Kitchen Convenience that Adjusts Your Work-Table to Suit Your Height

Gymnasium instructors have a little trick of asking new members of their classes to hold their hands above their heads and open and close their fingers. After a minute or two the student usually suffers an acute pain in the muscles. Yet opening and closing the fingers is a simple, natural operation. It's the unnatural position in which the arms are held which wears one out.

Unless your work-table is adjusted to the proper height to suit your individual build, you stand in an unnatural position which puts a muscle strain on arms and back for such movements as rolling dough and beating eggs.

That is why so many women wear themselves out at their kitchen work. It is also why women who own the new HOOOSIER are freed from such muscle-strains. For the new HOOOSIER gives you a work-table adjusted to your comfort.

An initial payment as low as $1.00 will put a HOOOSIER in your home.

Sleeveless Gowns
Welcomed Fashion

Comfort Is Chief Attraction; Graceful Shoulder Lines.

Nobody knows how it happened, but this season sleeves have refused to take any part in the cast-off garments designed for afternoon wear, declares a fashion writer in the Detroit News. Heretofore they have starred as a feature in most of the modish gowns and true as the old adage that "a man is known by the company he keeps," so the up-to-dateness of a gown was gauged by the sleeve it attached. Then, having been the one distinguishing note, with every whim for the unusual humored to nth degree, sleeves suddenly repudiated old associates and retired from the frock entirely.

So the modern afternoon gown billows, clings or trails, as the case may be, but altogether innocent of anything that could be construed as a sleeve, and accepts the abbreviation quite as a matter of course.

No gown that has been deserted by a pair of sleeves is going to display any chagrin over the matter, and there really isn't any reason to take it much to heart, for the long, graceful shoulder lines that supplant the erstwhile sleeve have a charm all their own. Add to this the comfort of a sleeveless gown on a torrid afternoon and fashion can snap her fingers in the face of the sleeve and care not a jot for its retirement.

So the fact is established that for afternoon wear, gowns are without sleeves. Looking back on the models of the past year discovers a hint of what has come about in the shorter and shorter lengths, the open shoulder seam and other innovations that have paved the way for complete disappearance of what was once considered a very essential part of the afternoon frock. But while the sleeve has been eliminated, skirts have been elongated, so there is no economy of material to be discovered in the new modes that confront femininity.

Lovely and Graceful.

Boldly stated, a gown for afternoon devoid of sleeves sounds rather shocking. But no matter how it sounds to talk about it, to observe it is to lose every scruple the vocal proclamation has conjured. Sleeveless gowns are lovely and graceful, and ingratiating, appearing as casual, as perfectly correct, as anything in the way of a frock could possibly be. So, no matter what preconceived notions there are, one glance removes them. That is why the sleeveless gown has established its place in the realm of fashion, accepted by those who delight in combining beauty with comfort.

Every kind of soft, clinging fabric is used in the fashioning of these gowns. Voiles in innumerable subtle tints, combined with delicate laces, are the very essence of summer at her happiest. Often a yoke of embroidered material edged with frills of filmy lace, follows the round neck line and drops just a wee bit over the upper arm at the shoulder. Not so that it can be classed as a sleeve, oh, no! To call it a sleeve would be a fatal mistake and quite beyond the scope of the most healthy imagination.

Very Beautiful Black Dinner Gown in Satin, Satin Back Moire with Hem of Malines and Very Simply Trimmed With Blue Flowers at Waistline. Ear-rings of Pearl With Pearl and Sapphire Bracelet.

If there must be something on the arm in lieu of a sleeve, let it be bracelets, or a bracelet. Either is correct, for the band may be a broad affair of platinum or silver set with precious stones, or there may be any number of very narrow silver and jet bands loosely circling the arm.

Nor is the field of sleeveless gowns constricted to the afternoon function. They are seen on the street, and in fifty little frocks for sports wear. In fact, it isn't half so much the occasion, as the arm, that regulates the wearing of the sleeveless gown, for the good-looking arm has a chance to show its points of beauty on nearly all occasions—while, naturally the arm less attractive isn't so generally inclined to display.

Chiffon Popular.

Delightfully graceful and cool-looking are the chiffon models over slips of silk, the chiffon overdress trimmed in self material with cascading bands down the side. One particularly beautiful gown of this kind in delicate yet vivid blue has for its only trimming a beaded girdle at the low waistline, the beads of the same color combined with crystal and iridescent hues. It was the one touch of brightness that finished the gown.

Batik silks, designed for sports wear, are combined with plain silk of matching shade, sans sleeves, of course, the long batik overblouse plainly banded and caught loosely at the hip in a few straight gathers. The skirt, following the design of the blouse, has the plain band at the bottom and up the sides, bordering a panel of the batik silk. In this gown the plain band drops low on the shoulder, covering the extreme upper part of the arm. But sleeves—there are none.

Plain faille silk is banded with plain material in contrasting color, the fastening at the girdle carrying the Greek key design, and over the left hip ribbon, tied in a careless bow. Extremely simple is this frock, yet it expresses style in its every line. Here the shoulder seam is long, forming a little cap at the top of the arm.

Work for Vacation Days.

Vacation days, need not necessarily be idle days. Many a woman prefers to have some bit of sewing or knitting to occupy her fingers during those afternoons when the porch seems the only livable spot.

There are many smart accessories now, easily made, that not only furnish up the summer frocks and give style to the organdies or crepes that are losing their freshness, but also afford pleasant summer pastime.

Fancy bandeaux for the hair, composed of ribbon, flowers and perky bows require only a few stitches and they are ever so attractive.

The craze for bracelets has revived the old fashion of black velvet bands for the wrist above the elbow with trimmings of fancy buckles or clusters of flowers.

One New York debutante has popularized the fad of wearing an inch-wide velvet band tightly about each wrist, fastened with a pink satin rose. She wears these with sleeveless frocks and the effect is charming.

Another fad is for corsages, worn directly in the front, made of cascades of flowers and colored ribbons, almost resembling the bridal shower bouquet.

The matching jacket and hat of gay cretonne is a very smart accessory to any costume, and if one makes the coat sleeveless, the question of fit is greatly modified.

Make Hand-Painted Hats.

Hand-painted hats are very smart and easy to make. Simply buy a white or colored felt and, with a small water color brush and a little oil paint or dye, transpose thereon your favorite flowers. If you prefer conventional designs, stick to angles and lines. To show your interest in the recent Egyptian excavations, you can copy an Egyptian motif.

If you are afraid of your freehand efforts, stencils will make the work much simpler. You can make your stencils or buy them.

Slipper buckles are made of lace and ribbon arranged rosette fashion about clusters of flowers or buckles set with brilliants. Beaded stockings are quite a fad and are easily made. Steel beads are very effective as well as colors to match the frocks.

Dame Fashion is well equipped to furnish work for idle hands.

Simple Light Changes.

When a different lighting scheme is desired by the hostess for her party, it is not necessary for her to change the expensive shades of her floor and other lamps. A new colored glass cover is purchasable at home furnishing stores and is obtainable in any hue or tint preferred. It covers the bulb or bulbs of the lamp.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

UNITED STATES MAKING IRON AS AN EXPERIMENT

Bureau of Mines Is Attempting to Solve Some Problems.

Washington.—The United States government is now making iron, but only as an experiment and not for the commercial field. Its blast furnace is located at Minneapolis and is operated as a laboratory by the bureau of mines in co-operation with the University of Minnesota. After four years of experimentation to develop it, the furnace recently produced several tons of gray iron and spiegeleisen.

This type of experiment is declared unique in the field of industrial research, as blast furnaces are not included usually in laboratory equipment. But with the demonstration showing every phase of the operation of iron-making under complete technical control, it is believed the investigators at the Minneapolis station are in a position to undertake the study of various problems, the solution of which should be of great practical value to blast furnace operators.

The furnace was operated first as a slagging type gas producer until it had reached a steady state thermally and chemically. Iron ore without the addition of a flux then was introduced, and its descent in the furnace was followed by means of gas samples taken at various stations. When the effect of this charge had been dissipated, more ore was charged without limestone, and other sets of samples were taken.

The purpose is to obtain a comparison of the gas composition at various planes of the furnace. Various sizes of ore also were used. The reduction of the ore at the stockline was found to be greater with smaller sized ore, as indicated by higher carbon dioxide.

One of the most important problems that will be worked out with the experimental furnace will be that of finding a means of extracting iron from the low-grade ores found especially in northern Minnesota.

Paderewski Purchases
Tickets to Own Show

Paris.—Ignace Jan Paderewski, the famous Polish pianist and composer, received one of the heartiest welcomes accorded him since his return to the concert stage when he appeared before a Paris audience recently.

The French press retold at great length the story of how the noted artist was expelled from Russia years ago by Emperor Alexander III, after Paderewski had played before the court.

"You are a great artist, and an honor to Russia," the emperor is reported to have said.

"Pardon, your majesty," replied Paderewski. "To Poland."

The next day the pianist received an order to leave Russia, and he has never returned since.

The newspapers here also mentioned the fact that on the day of his first concert, Paderewski drove to the theater box office and purchased nearly 100 seats at regular prices, which he distributed among his friends.

Snake Falls Out of Spigot With Water

A black and yellow snake, about five inches long, fell from the spigot in the home of John Newman, at Taunton, Mass., when Mrs. Newman drew a bucket of water. The city's drinking water is drawn from a lake 12 miles away, and the snake traveled through the pipes from there to the Newman home, it is believed.

Botha's Strategy.
One day during the Boer war the arduous march to Windhoek in the broiling sun was particularly trying. General Botha cheerily told his men to buck up, as he hoped to finish the campaign and be home in time for his wife's birthday. His men cheered, and tolled on in good heart. But by and by one of them asked the date of Mrs. Botha's birthday. "Oh! that is a secret!" was the reply, and then the men realized that the laugh was against them.

FOOD CLUB

Logan Elm Girls Will Make Exhibit at Ohio State Fair.

Mrs. B. W. Young, leader of the Logan Elm Food club reports that her girls will make an exhibit at the Ohio State fair this coming week in competition with Food clubs from all over Ohio.

During the summer months the members of the club have canned 1616 pints of fruits and vegetables; have prepared 104 dishes for their home tables; have planned 100 meals; baked 48 dozen rolls and 46 dozen quick breads.

In addition to these, a number of glasses of jelly have been made, and the girls have a number of bakings of bread to their credit.

This club is one of the active ones in Pickaway county, and deserves much credit for making such a large record even before the main canning season has arrived.

POSTPONING OLD AGE.

Old age is as inevitable as death and taxes. But the term "old age" is elastic; some persons are old at 50 years; some are young at 80. A witty Frenchman said once that a man is as old as his arteries, which is partly true, since the condition of the arteries is a pretty fair indication of the state of the other tissues and organs. Many physicians believe that the degenerative changes that are characteristic of old age begin in the arteries and appear later in the other tissues as a consequence of the diminished supply of blood and of impure blood. One theory is that the arterial thickening and hardening invariably found in the aged (the aged as measured by diminished function and not by years) are owing to auto-intoxication acting thru many years; the poisons in the blood cause degenerative changes in the walls of the arteries. Another theory is that senility depends on changes in the cells and tissues caused by a principle in them that leads in early life to growth and in later life to decay. But whatever the theories, and there are many of them they all lead to the same conclusion; depending in the case of one person on an inherited constitution and in the case of another on the mode of life he has followed, the period at which old age begins, varies within wide limits, and, barring an inextinguishable inheritance, the individual can do much to postpone it. Unfortunately, the time to begin is early adult life, just when old age seems so remote as to be negligible.

The secret of postponing old age lies in observing temperance in the broad sense of the word—moderation in everything; in eating, in coffee drinking and tea drinking, in sleeping in exercising, in working and indeed in every phase of human existence. Athletes are not long-lived; neither are those who are too strenuous in business, nor those who worry. The obese are usually short-lived for the reason that they are likely to be heavy eaters or to have defective nutritive organs. Breathing fresh air day and night and walking moderately without missing a day are essential to long life, as they are essential to health—Youth's Companion.

COLORED MAN INJURED.

Andy Jones, colored and married, claiming Edgefield, North Carolina, as his home, was injured this morning in the Norfolk & Western railroad yards when he was trying to jump on a train. HARDWOOD IN PAPER MAKING

Scrap Lumber Goes Into Great Chipping Machine Then to Digester

Mill on Twenty-Four Hour Schedule Produces 26,480 Pieces and 1,000 Shipping Boxes—Rouge Plant Eliminates Waste Wherever Possible.

Wood pulp produced from hard wood for use in paper making is the latest attainment at the River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor company.

It is the first time in the history of the paper manufacturing industry that hard wood has been successfully converted by what is known as the "soda process" into pulp so that it could be utilized in the production of paper and therefore is an achievement of outstanding importance. Heretofore, spruce, poplar and similar soft woods have been looked upon as the only kinds available for paper manufacture.

Experiments covering several months were carried on before the River Rouge plant paper mill finally developed a process whereby hard wood could be used in the making of pulp. Now manufacture is being successfully carried out on a large scale with plans under way for increasing production as soon as new equipment can be installed.

The development of the new process enables the Ford Motor company to use all the scrap pieces from its body building plant at River Rouge, thus effecting a new economy in lumber conservation.

The scrap lumber goes into a great machine where it is chipped and then carried by suction pipes to an immense digester.

About 18,000 pounds or nine tons of chips are placed in the digester for one batch and average about 75 per cent hard maple, the remainder of oak ash, and other hard woods. To these are added 4500 gallons of caustic solution of sufficient strength to reduce the chips to a high quality fibre under seven hours cooking at 110 pounds steam pressure.

When the digesting process is completed the fibre is pumped into washing machines and thoroly cleansed. It comes out 100 per cent wood fibre ready for paper manufacture.

Production at the mill at present is confined to that of a superior quality binder board, .075 to .030 of an inch thick, of firm body, water proof and exceptionally durable.

The mill operating on a twenty-four hour schedule, daily produces 26,480 finished pieces and in addition turns out 1,000 boxes for shipping purposes.

This latest development at the River Rouge plant is in keeping with the company's general policy of eliminating waste wherever possible and of continually setting new and higher standards of manufacture so as to bring the utmost in quality.

AT THE COURT HOUSE

Will of Charles Ward.

The will of Charles Ward has been probated. The testator bequeaths $100 to the trustees of Reber Hill cemetery, the income of which is to be used to care for his burial lot.

The residue of the property, both real and personal, is given to his two children, Charles Harold and Pauline Ward in fee simple and in equal shares.

J. H. Sark was named and appointed executor and also guardian of the children and trustee of the property given to his daughter, Pauline, until she arrives at the age of twenty-one years. The will is dated November 16 1909. H. J. Bond and G. G. Brintlinger were the subscribing witnesses. The estate is estimated to be worth $22,000, of which $2000 is personal.

Paternity Charge.

A Confusing Invitation.

A man named Dodgin had been appointed foreman in a brickyard, but his name was not known to all the employees. One day while on his round he came across two men sitting in a corner smoking, and stopped near them. "Who are you?" asked one of them. "I'm Dodgin, the new foreman," he replied. "So are we," replied the other workers. "Sit down and have a smoke."

Heavy Toll of Grain Smuts.

It would doubtless be safe to say that we are paying out annually as a price for what amounts to national negligence grain enough to fill an elevator of 90,000,000 bushels capacity. This vast and really inexcusable toll is exacted by preventable smuts. It is a waste of sufficient wheat to supply our allies with 4,000,000 barrels of flour, and oats enough to feed 1,100,000 horses for a year. The simple and inexpensive formaldehyde treatment of seed will save most of this loss.

Origin of Goldfish.

Goldfish are the result of the elimination of the somber colors in a variety of carp by selective breeding begun by the Chinese and Japanese in the Sixteenth century.

Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"Kelly," said the Hotel Stenographer, "that guy who blurted a little learning is a dangerous thing wrote a pageful."

"You don't know much!" said the Hotel Detective.

"I know enough to know that there is such a thing as a psychoanalyst," replied the girl.

"It that one of these finger print fellows?"

"A psychoanalyst," explained the girl, "is a man who takes finger prints of your mind. He asks you questions you would smack any other man in the mouth about and gets you to tell him your dreams and hits you just below the knee when your feet are crossed and a lot of things like that and then adds it all up and subtracts your environment and tells you you ought to stop bootlegging and go to writing verses for summer resort picture postals.

"The guy who psychoed me found out that my father was red headed and my mother was a tall woman and then told me I would never be happy so long as my fingers danced a clog on the keys of that typewriter and that my forte was in some branch of art. I can't sing Mother Macree, anything I draw has but one dimension and no proportion, so I guess I will have to be a writer.

"I gave that bird five bucks for the info he gave me about my life, but how I'm going to get it back is more than I can see unless I write a few scenarios. Anybody who can get together a blueeyed heroine with a ready lachrymal duct, a hairy chested hero and a miser with a mortgage can write scenario.

"I have another qualification, too, Kelly. I have a good sense of humor and I do not see how anybody can write a good sob scenario without a sense of humor, for most of them are too funny for words. But, anyhow, I know what I am fit for now even if I never did paint anything but parts of my own face."

SWIMMERS

Bryon Eby Won Bathing Suit for Finishing First in Race.

Conditions for trial spins, made by local swimmers, Sunday, who are entered in the Ohio State Journal swimming meet at Indianola park, on Friday, were not ideal. Just as the crowd was getting set at the Yellowbud pond showers chased them and it was not until after the rain had ceased that the swimmers put on their stuff.

In the men's race Bryon Eby, local high school lad, won by two yards from Fred "Cotton" Corcoran, in the slow time of 36 3-5 seconds. In a practice spin previous to the race, Eby bettered this time by a full second and probably could have done three or four seconds better if pushed.

Quite a crowd saw the contest, after which Corcoran and Eby gave demonstrations of Red Cross Life Saving corps stunts. Both are members of the local corps and Yellowbud swimmers were invited to get their feet wet along this line of endeavor.

Eby won a fine bathing suit, offered by the Levy Clothing Co., of Chillicothe to the man finishing first.—Scioto Gazette.

Bryon Eby, the young swimmer is a son of Eb Eby, proprietor of the New American Hotel.

Rubber Is Composite.

That rubber as it serves you is no direct tree-to-home affair, but that more than 500 different pigments and ingredients enter into it to make it usable, is pointed out by the chemical engineers of one of the tire manufacturers of Akron. These, he says, are vital to produce rubbers that meet the varying demands for toughness, elasticity and hardness. The rubber in the rubber band, the heel on your shoe, or the treads on your tires are not just simple vulcanized mixtures of rubber and sulphur. The compounds are complicated, they have long since passed from the stage of simplicity which they occupied practically until the development of the automobile got under way.

Molten Iron Won't Burn.

Not so many generations ago suspected criminals were forced to walk across a bed of hot coals in what was known as a "trial by ordeal." It was contended that if Providence prevented their being burned they must be innocent. To walk across blazing coals seems impossible, and yet recently a European inventor plunged his hand in a stream of molten iron without even being burned. Forced from a nozzle by air pressure, the white-hot metal was broken up into such small particles that it struck the flesh, cooled and fell away like dust so rapidly that no injury resulted. When spraying from the nozzle, however, it looked like a small piece of fireworks.

Cistern Water.

Generally the disagreeable odor and taste sometimes noticed in cistern water is due to the growth of an algae, a microscopic plant. Occasionally there may be a growth of moss or other material that will add to the trouble. Adding chloride of lime having about 35 per cent available chlorine in the proportion of one to three pounds per 100,000 gallons of water will kill the growth of bacteria and algae. It may be necessary to clean out the cistern thoroughly and wash the walls. However, do not do this until after trying the chlorinated lime. A pump that will stir up the water in the cistern, such as an ordinary chain pump, will prove beneficial.

Explain Carefully to Children.

It is characteristic of child nature to be slow to comprehend. This is natural to an untrained mind and would seem to be apparent to all. Yet, oftentimes, parents forget this fact and expect the child mind to comprehend at once, and render instant obedience. It is not strange that sometimes the little child instinctively prefers to do that with which it is already familiar, or acts slowly in doing something new and unfamiliar. If we are patient and reasonable in our demands and extend to children the same courtesy which we ask for ourselves, we shall have much less cause for discipline.

The American Abroad.

A Parisian woman, going to her children's playroom, discovered her little boy and girl absorbed in a remarkable game. The boy stood, motionless and solemn, on a small table in the middle of the room; the girl, arrayed in grown-up hat and coat, walked slowly around him, regarding him thoughtfully, now and then peering abstractedly into a red-covered book in her hand. "What are you doing, children?" asked the puzzled parent. "Oh, Pierre is the Column Vendome, mamma," gravely explained his sister, "and I am a tourist from America—with a book, you know."

Where Sardines Are Found.

Sardines are abundantly found off the Galician, Andalusian and Cantabrian coasts. This fish varies in length from approximately 4 1/2 to 7 1/2 inches and weighs from 24 to 68 grams (0.864 to 2.398 ounces); occasionally larger specimens are caught.

WOMEN ARE MAKING GOOD

Five Hundred Are in Employ of Norfolk & Western Railroad.

Mrs. W. H. Lamb, First Trick Operator in Circleville, Gets Good Writeup in Company Magazine—Has Been in Service 24 Years.

The Norfolk & Western Magazine for August has a very interesting article on the women in the employ of the railroad and gives its readers a good picture of Mrs. M. H. Lamb at work in the tower in this city, and says some very complimentary things of her and about her work.

The Magazine says:

"One of our famous newspaper cartoon characters, Abe Martin, was once made to say: 'Women are jes' like elephants. They're nice to look at but who wants to own one?' It's a safe bet that the man who put these words into the mouth of Abe Martin is a widower, or a cynical old bachelor, else he couldn't have gotten away with a remark like that but who knows, perhaps he didn't escape. However, despite all the quips at her expense, it is still the hand of woman that rocks the cradle—and rules the world. She has an indispensable part in all the undertakings of man, always has had and always will have.

"Yet, with all of the many accomplishments to her credit, it was not until August 26, 1920 that the Nineteenth Amendment to the constitution of the United States was finally promulgated by the secretary of state, after having been ratified by a majority of the state legislatures. It was this amendment that gave to the women of our country the privilege to exercise a full share in the selection of our public officials who are entrusted with the reins of a government which we men have long proclaimed as a government of, by and for the people. So three years ago this month women became people.

"Just as in every other undertaking of importance in the world, woman has her share in the operation of the Norfolk and Western. How much of a share she has is not fully realized until one has had the opportunity to investigate, and having done this, we are going to present the results as best we can. We do not hope to be able to do the subject the justice it deserves and so we do not expect the applause to be deafening, the possibly some will be good enough to admit that our effort is about what could be expected of a mere man.

"There are approximately 500 women in the service of the Norfolk & Western (this figure includes both women and girls, but as we find it difficult to determine satisfactorily the line of demarcation, we feel much safer in speaking of them collectively as women) and the positions they hold range from that of stenographer and clerk all the way to chief clerks, division timekeepers, operators and agents. That you may have a better idea of some of the things our women are doing we will mention a few of them individually.

"Mrs. M. H. Lamb, first trick operator in the tower at Circleville, enjoys an enviable reputation as one who can always be relied upon to perform carefully and properly every duty assigned to her. One needs only to watch her for a while to realize the responsibility of her position and recognize her ability.

"At Circleville the tracks of the old Cincinnati & Muskingum Valley, now a part of the Pennsylvania lines, cross our rails and therefore the operator in this tower is charged with the safe movement of the trains of both lines thru the interlocking plant. Besides this, she also handles the gates at the public grade crossing near by, and the telegraph and telephone business, including train orders for trains on both railroads.

"She has a record of which she can feel proud, having been in the service of the company about 24 years and there are, as yet, no entries on the debit side of her record card. She has served in Circleville tower for twelve years and during that time there have been no accidents to trains, or to vehicles on the grade crossing which are chargeable to her in any way.

"Mr. Lamb is also an operator and at present is working the second trick in this office. They were married in Roxana, Ohio, on November 12, 1896, at which time Mrs. Lamb was an operator for the Pennsylvania lines at that point, and Mr. Lamb was the proprietor of a hotel, having temporarily forsaken his occupation as an operator. It was in Roxana that Mrs. Lamb learned telegraphy, holding her first office at Spring Valley on the same railroad. She was later transferred to Roxana.

"Mrs. Lamb served with the Pennsylvania lines for six years and has splendid written recommendations from the officials of that road, one of them being signed by Ralph Peters, who is now president of the Long Island lines. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lamb entered the service of the Norfolk & Western at Duvall on September 15, 1899, and later went to Delano where they remained until 1911 when they came to Circleville.

"They have one son, Sterling, now 18 years of age, and who graduated this year from Circleville high school and they intend sending him to college this fall. She says that she loves railroad work and could not think of giving it up yet. Isn't that typical of the average railroader who has been in the game long enough to feel its peculiar fascinating grip?

"She has the reputation of being just as good a housekeeper and cook as she is a telegrapher."

AMUSEMENTS

"Forget-Me-Not," which was shown for the first time yesterday at the Met theater is a picture which maketh the heart glad. Given a story human to the last degree with a cast which brings to each character a sympathetic impersonation and direction which shows unusual knowledge of life and especially of the heart of a child, the result is a picture which cannot fail to win favor with everyone who welcomes photoplays which are free from hoakum and which have some semblance to life as it really is.

"Forget-Me-Not" is a love story but it is more than that. It is the life story of two foundlings who find in their devotion for each other some compensation for the unkind fate which has deprived them of home and affection of parents. But even this consolation is denied them, for Jimmy is adopted by a rich woman and passes out of Ann's life to reappear under conditions that seem at the time to shatter her faith in the goodness of life.

"Forget-Me-Not" is a Louis Burston production for Metro in which Gareth Hughes and Bessie Love play the leading roles. They make the characters stand out with vivid lifelikeness. The story is by Henry R. Symmonds and is adapted by John B. Clymer. W. S. VanDyke is the director.

Historic trails

The Pennsylvania Railroad System is the short line between the West and East and carries annually about seventeen per cent of the total passenger traffic of America.

THE origin of the old Indian trails is shrouded in the mists of antiquity. For unnumbered centuries they were trod by the moss-shod feet of savage warriors and later became the highway for the hardy pioneers in their Conestoga wagons.

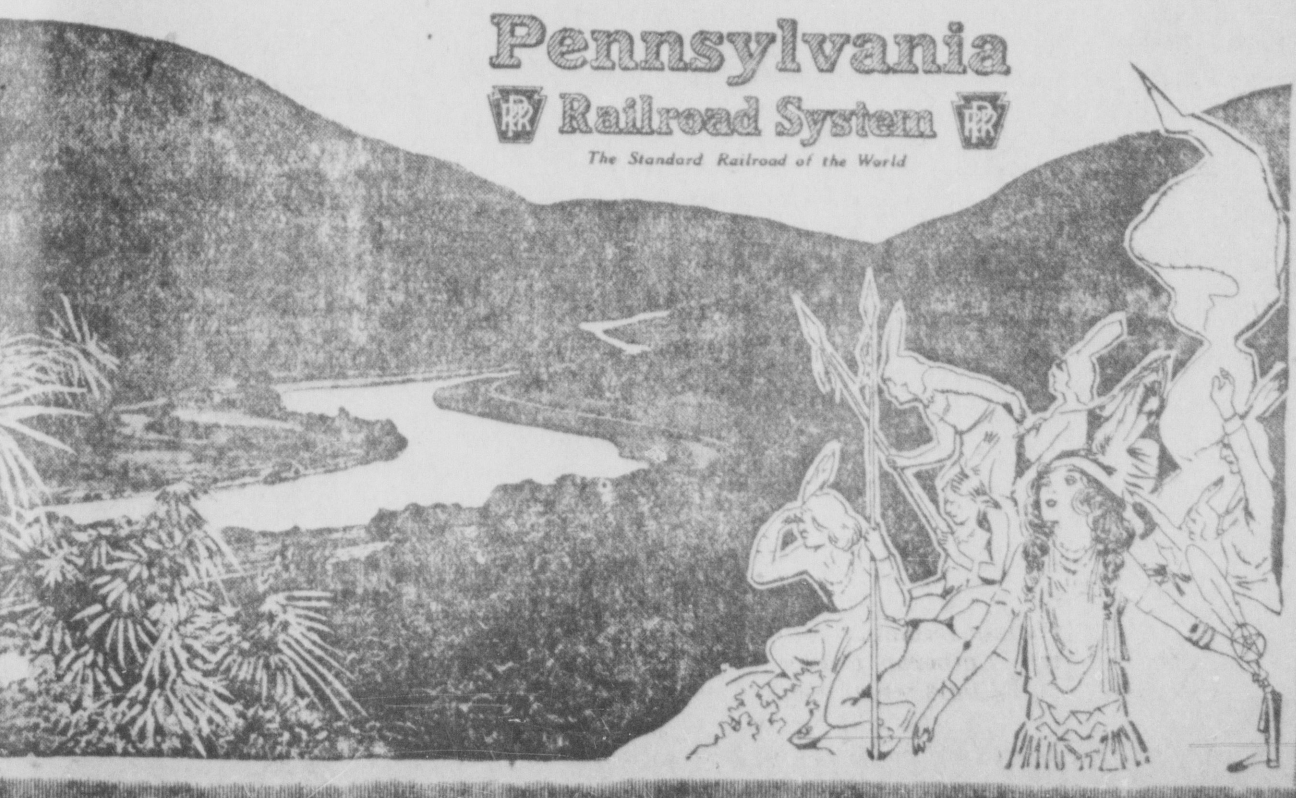

They had been developed with unerring skill along the shortest available route over mountain and plain—taking advantage wherever possible of wild and picturesque gaps cut by onrushing streams in the everlasting hills of Pennsylvania.

The main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad between the West and East follows the old trails for many miles through the Alleghenies and the traveler of today enjoys splendid vistas of sylvan beauty as his journey leads him along those age-old paths.

River and railroad contest the way through the Packsaddle, Jacks Narrows, Lewistown Narrows and the Gaps of the Susquehanna. Moss-shod feet and Conestoga wagons have given place to modern all-steel trains. But the pristine glories of nature in mountain and stream remain unchanged and unrivaled.

PLAY THE GAME

By DOROTHY KNIGHT

(Copyright, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"DO YOU mean to say there is no train out of this deserted village for five hours?"

"No, madam," replied the agent.

"Isn't there any possible way of my getting to Vernon before that?"

The agent shook his head.

The "deserted village" was Harris Junction, and it or its counterpart will be familiar to anyone who has ever traveled in the Middle West. There was a small hotel labeled "Junction House."

"There is an automobile in front of that house. Do you think its owner would drive me to Vernon?"

"Well, you can ask him," said the agent, doubtfully.

She crossed the dusty street in the glaring sun, leaving four other travelers, who were also waiting for the five-hour-old train.

One of these was a very attractive young woman, who showed great sympathy with the older woman when she came back from her animated talk with the man across the street, with a slightly dejected expression.

"Oh, I'm so sorry you were not successful."

The older woman's face brightened at this sign of friendliness. She introduced herself as Mrs. Black, from New York, and started to tell her troubles.

"Well, of all the obstinate men! Would you believe it, Miss—," she hesitated.

"Mrs. Carlton."

"Is it awfully important that you should get there at once?"

"Well, I am very anxious to do so. Of course, it's not a life and death affair, but I am going to visit my mother, and I haven't seen her in years. It is to be a complete surprise. She has no idea I'm coming, and it's such a bore waiting here. I think the doctor might make an exception in my case, even if it is his rule never to leave except on a case. By the way, are you going in my direction?"

"Yes, to Winston, the next station beyond Vernon."

"Oh, I have an idea. Why don't you tell the doctor you are going to visit a sick relative? I'm sure he would go for anything important, and then I can go along, too. Will you?" She paused expectantly.

Mrs. Carlton blushed in embarrassment and perplexity. It was plainly to be seen that she did not want to do it, and yet she hated to refuse.

"Oh, well, if you have a New England conscience, you are excused."

"Well, I am from New England, but I'm afraid my conscience isn't that variety, for it was not inborn, as the good old New England conscience should be."

"That sounds interesting. Won't you tell me about it?"

"Why, it's my whole life story, but perhaps I can tell it briefly. I always went through life in a careless, happy-go-lucky way. I never thought I was exactly selfish, and I don't think my friends did, either. But I always wanted to do as I pleased without restrictions."

"Naturally, when the war came, and Jim and I were married, I thought I had to be permitted to go to France, where I would be able to see him whenever he could get a leave of absence, although I knew that there was an iron-bound rule against soldiers' wives going overseas. So I got across, and soon after, Jim came. But as fate had it, I never saw him once. He was wounded in his very first battle and invalided home."

"I learned I was only one individual cog in the universal machine, and important as my affairs might seem to me to be, they were really insignificant."

"I made a vow then and there that I would play the game strictly according to rules after that, and never claim exemptions from inconveniences, responsibilities or actual hardships."

Just as her story ended, they were startled by cries from the road, where there had been a slight automobile accident. The doctor rushed from his side of the road and Mrs. Carlton rushed from hers. The others, fearing they would be in the way, stayed where they were and watched anxiously as a woman was being carried into the doctor's house. The others were uninjured.

Soon Mrs. Carlton came back.

"Nothing serious. One woman was bruised a little and we bandaged her up. But she has a very weak heart, and the shock might have proved fatal had there been no doctor present to give the proper stimulant. But as it is, she is all right."

Mrs. Black turned pale as she realized there would have been no doctor present if she had had her way.

"Mr. and Mrs. Gregory and their friend, who was hurt, are from Vernon, so you will have a chance to go by machine, after all, and you will still save three hours."

"Mr. and Mrs. Gregory? Why, they are friends of—." Then, in a frightened voice, "Who was the woman with them?"

"A Mrs. Walker, I think."

"Mother!"

If Overnight Guests Came

If friends should come for the night, would you have adequate sleeping room for them? Or would someone be forced to get as much rest as possible from some uncomfortable makeshift? With just enough sleeping rooms for the family, there comes the embarrassment of asking someone to sleep on something never intended to be used as a bed.

A Northfield will relieve you of any such emergency. Beneath the soft, low seat is a full-size, restful bed—perfectly concealed. You will never be aware of its presence until the need for it arises.

A large variety of Overstuffed, Fibre Reed and Period designs are available. You can select single pieces or suites that will harmonize with the rest of your furniture. We will be glad to assist you in making a choice.

Corn Silage as Feed for Horses

Under Certain Conditions Varieties of Molds Are Deadly Poisons.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Silage is a safe and useful feed for horses and mules if proper care is exercised in making and feeding it, says
the United States Department of Agriculture. There are certain precautions, however, which must be taken
if success is to be secured in the feeding of silage to this class of stock.

Horses and mules are peculiarly susceptible to the effects of molds,
and under certain conditions varieties
of mold are found in silage which are deadly poisons to both horses and mules. Such molds are the result of either the improper cutting or packing of the silage or both. Molds must have air to grow and, therefore, silage
which is packed air-tight and fed out rapidly will not become moldy. If the feeder watches the silage carefully as the weather becomes warm, he can soon detect the presence of mold. When mold appears the feeding should be stopped immediately. Similarly,
care should be exercised in the winter
feeding of silage, so that the horses
or mules are not allowed to eat frozen
silage because of the danger of colic,
which generally follows such practice.

Corn Silage Favored.

Corn silage is the only kind that so far has met with any degree of favor
as a horse and mule feed. Corn which is to be ensiled for use as a horse and mule feed should not be cut too green, as sour silage will result, and this may cause colic when
fed. Corn for such feed, rather,
should be cut when it has begun to glaze and the silo should be filled as rapidly as possible, once the ensiling process has been started. In filling the silo it is essential that the corn
be carefully and thoroughly tramped and packed. This is one of the most important points in connection with the feeding of silage to horses and mules. Cutting the silage fine and in lengths less than one inch will facilitate packing. If tramping and packing is properly done no feeding danger is apt to result, but if it is improperly done air pockets may form and cause the accumulation of a small mass of mold which, if overlooked in feeding, may be sufficient to kill one or more of the animals fed.

Substitute for Hay.

In feeding, silage should not be considered as the principal roughage for horses and mules, but rather should serve as a partial substitute for hay in the daily ration. Because of its bulky nature, horses and mules doing hard work should not be fed large quantities of silage, but due to its laxative, tonic, and appetizing effect,
it is well suited for the maintenance
of idle horses and mules, brood mares
and growing stock. When used, silage should be introduced gradually into the ration and the amount fed should generally not exceed 10 to 15 pounds
daily per animal.

Boys' Pig Clubs Growing in Popularity in West

When the Colorado club boy's pig grows into a fat hog he finds a good market at the Western National Live Stock show. Beginning with 1921, the exhibiting and sale of fat hogs fed by club boys following the methods advocated by extension workers and shipped co-operatively in carload lots,
has been one of the features of this show. Last year four carloads were exhibited by these young stockmen, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, and later
auctioned off. Two carloads of straight
Duroc-Jerseys, one car of Poland-
Chinas, and one car of mixed Poland-Chinas and Durocs were included. The carload receiving first prize sold for
the highest price paid for any carload
in the entire show and the other three brought top prices.

Sweet Clover Superior for Building Up Soil

Sweet clover is truly a wonderful plant, and has done more for the upbuilding of poor, worn-out soil than any other plant. It is a wonderful soil builder, a soil renovator, and a splendid pasture crop, and while it is making an abundance of feed it is building up the soil to a greater extent than is possible for any other crop to build up the soil. The poorer the soil the more thrifty grows the sweet clover plant—it seemingly being a God-given soil-builder for the depleted soils of the country.

Plaster Silo Inside to Prevent Juices Leaking

Cement stave, cement block and clay
tile silos should all be well plastered
on the inside to prevent the juices from leaking out through the mortar joints.
Two coats of rich cement mortar should be used in most cases. If the juices of the silage get into the mortar joints and freeze there is apt to be trouble.

Destruction of Trees by Fires Is Criminal

Save the trees. Grow more trees.
Plant a tree and watch it grow into money while you sleep. It takes many years to grow a big tree, but it only takes a few minutes to destroy it by fire. The destruction by forest fires is criminal. Some way should be developed to prevent this colossal waste.

Nutritive Value of Apples.
Most people know apples are healthful. But a great many do not know that they are among the most nutritious of fruits and that their value in this way is higher than that of many every day foods commonly regarded as about three-fourths the nutritive value of potatoes and as everyone knows, potatoes are a solid and dependable food.

* SOCIAL CALENDAR *

About 55 relatives of the Grove and Miller families met at the home of John Miller in Columbus, August 19, with well filled baskets and at noon all went to Franklin park, where long tables were spread and all enjoyed all that was good to eat. A most enjoyable time was had by all. Those who spent the day were Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Dumm and daughters, Hazel, Helen, Mabel, Elizabeth, Marie and Mary and sons; Cleve, Marvin, Grover and Woodrow, of Nash; Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Wright and daughter, Ruth and sons; Emerson, George, Harry, Lawrence and Julius, of Hayesville; Mr. and Mrs. Alva Hanley and daughters; Mary and Mattie and sons; Earl Edward and Ray, of Stoutsville, Mr. and Mrs. George S. LIPTON TO TRY AGAIN

Will Build Another Challenger and Call It the Shamrock.
New York, Aug. 21.—Sir Thomas Lipton arrived on the Cedric with the announcement that once more he will try to lift the Americas cup. "Of course I'll build another challenger," said Sir Thomas. "And just as much, of course," he added, "I'll call her the Shamrock. This will be No. 5 and we'll race in 1925. I think the cup ought to be homesick by now, and will relish a little 'vacation' back home; that is providing Shamrock V can lift it. I am here primarily this trip to look over the 23 metre Shamrock, which will be tuned up and sailed back to British waters to enter the races around the British coast."

* YOUNG GIRLS ASSAULTED *

Thurman A. Betts and T. W. Timmons Charged With Crime.

Pearl Faler and Mary Wagner Accept Invitation to Ride in Auto and Are Victims of Assault in Carpenter Woods Near Darbyville.

One of the worst cases of human depravity in the history of this county, was enacted in the Scott Carpenter woods, one miles east of Darbyville, about eleven o'clock Monday evening. Shortly after that hour the quiet, little hamlet was thrown into a fever of excitement by a young lady who came into the town screaming at the top of her voice and fainted on the porch of Orpha Moore. As soon as she recovered consciousness she said: "My name is Pearl Faler, while going towards home in Columbus, in company with Miss Mary Wagner we were accosted on the street by two young men, who were driving a Chevrolet sedan. They said they would take us home. The car came up to the curb and we got in, but instead of taking us home they said that they would give us a little ride first and we did not object."

"We stopped on the road once, as the driver said he wanted to let the engine cool. While we were waiting one of the men suggested to Mary Wagner that they walk up the road. They got out and disappeared in the moonlight and while they were gone the other man made an indecent proposal to me. I got a hold of the auto crank and defended myself the best I knew how and ran towards this town, as I saw lights in the distance."

Dr. F. E. Ginder, who gave the girl medical attendance, notified the sheriff. The call was answered by Deputy Sheriff Howard Irwin, who when he arrived on the scene, found that a posse had formed and armed, clubs and guns had started out on the hunt of the two men. They found Thurman A. Betts, of Columbus, sitting in his car and T. W. Timmons, also of Columbus, and Mary Wagner in the Scott Carpenter woods. He had accomplished his purpose. The girl's garments were nearly torn off and she suffered severely by the rough handling she was forced to endure. She was brought to this city and was given medical attention by Dr. G. W. Heffner.

After the posse had secured Timmons and brought him back to Darbyville, he said that he had lost his pocketbook and on this pretext escaped. When Deputy Sheriff Irwin arrived, he gave chase and got his man just as he was entering Commercial Point. Both of the accused were brought to this city and were placed in the county jail for safekeeping.

Both of the young women have returned to their homes in Columbus.

Mary Wagner who is 18 years old, filed an affidavit against T. W. Timmons, charging him with rape and Pearl Faler, 19, has filed an affidavit charging Thurman A. Betts with assault with intent to commit rape. The affidavits were filed with Justice E. C. Friece.

LABOR DAY

Governor Vic Donahey Will Attend the Cincinnati Fall Festival.

Labor Day will be the biggest day of the Cincinnati Fall Festival and Industrial exposition, according to Warner Sayers, festival president, who expects local records for the largest crowd to be broken on that day.

Thousands of labor leaders will be in the city on Labor day to assist in the dedication of the new Brotherhood of Railway Clerks Bank, and will visit the festival in a body after the dedication exercises. In addition many out of town labor unions will celebrate Labor Day at the Cincinnati festival.

Governor Donahey of Ohio, will be the guest of honor and will be accompanied by his entire staff, who will motor from Columbus. He will speak in Music Hall in the evening.

Special exercises will be held in the Court of Honor, where many prominent labor leaders will sound the keynote of labor policies. Many special amusement attractions will be added to the regular program and an extra ground force will be put on to take care of the additional crowds.

ENGLAND FEARS FOR FUTURE

France Enjoys Prosperity While Germany Faces Ruin.

WHAT MELLON FOUND ABROAD

Secretary of Treasury Declares Europe as a Whole Is Fundamentally Sound Except for the Ruhr Dispute, and Predicts the Reparations Deadlock Will Be Broken Before Winter—Confers With Coolidge.

Washington, Aug. 21.—France prospers while England fears for the future and Germany faces ruin. Europe as a whole is fundamentally sound except for the Ruhr dispute. The reparations deadlock will be broken before winter.

Such was the substance of the report on old world conditions presented to President Coolidge in a long conference at the White House by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, chairman of the American world war foreign debt commission.

Mr. Mellon's conclusions as the result of six weeks passed in studying conditions abroad may be summarized as follows:

1. France is prosperous, although her policy is weakening her credit.

2. England fears for the future of world trade, upon which she relies for her economic existence and blames the deadlock in the Ruhr.

3. Germany confronts the prospect of communistic uprisings and disintegration of the empire, but could still function if permitted to do so.

4. There is not a gleam of light looking toward a solution of the reparations controversy, but the problem must be worked out. The settlement of the Ruhr deadlock will remove the last obstacle in the way of a general improvement.

5. There is nothing the United States can do, nor could have done, to bring about a solution, which must be worked out by the people immediately involved.

With regard to foreign debts owed the United States, Mr. Mellon feels that, officially at least, conditions remain exactly as they were before he went abroad. No French official suggested steps to fund the obligation of the Paris government.

The secretary was particularly impressed by conditions in France, which were the best that have prevailed there in many years. The crops were good and the country was self-sustaining, both fundamental conditions of prosperity. He found no unemployment, and work in the devastated region was going rapidly forward. Business in France was good. In the automobile industry, for example, Mr. Mellon found that no manufacturer could make deliveries within four months of the date of an order.

On reparations and the Ruhr Mr. Mellon found the French most rigid in their stand, with the financial interests strongly supporting the politicians in the government. Having failed to accomplish the ostensible purpose of the Ruhr invasion, France, he learned, still maintains that she will be able to work out her own solution.

Mr. Mellon does not believe that the German government intentionally drove down the mark in order to wipe out its debt and defeat reparations. Germany, he feels, was in need of food and raw materials and was without funds to make purchases abroad. The tendency of the mark was downward and the government could not have stopped it.

Giant Mail Planes Start Today.

New York, Aug. 21.—Giant planes, each loaded with 500 pounds of mail, will leave New York and San Francisco today, aiming to cross the continent in 28 hours. Although experimental, the flights are expected to mark the opening of daily mail service between the two oceans that will be added to as the demand for rapid mail delivery grows. There will be stops at Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Salt Lake City and Reno, Nev.

Firpo on Exhibition.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 21.—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, who will meet Jack Dempsey Sept. 14, now shares honors with racing greyhounds as the attraction at the Atlantic park, with admission of $1.10 for both features. Firpo opened training quarters at the park, where a 60-day dog racing season is under way, agreeing to make an afternoon and night performance before the grandstand every day until Sept. 12.

EARLY RULING LIKELY

State Supreme Court to Pass Upon Status of Taft Taxation Act.

Columbus, Aug. 21.—Early action is to be had in the suit brought in supreme court to determine the status of the Taft taxation law and the referendum which has been invoked against it. Chief Justice C. T. Marshall assigned the suit for argument on Sept. 27, two days after the return of the seven judges of the court from their summer vacation.

The suit was brought by John E. McCrehen, president of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards, following an attempt on the part of Secretary of State Thad H. Brown to exercise his constitutional office in determining whether the referendum petitions met the legal requirements. Brown was prevented from proceeding through a writ of prohibition issued by the chief justice. Later officials of the Cincinnati chamber of commerce brought suit also to require Brown to exercise his authority to determine the validity of the referendum petitions.

It is the purpose of the chief justice to determine the question in time to permit the referendum to be submitted at the November election in the event it is upheld by the court.

CONFEREES HIT ANOTHER SNAG

Anthracite Mine Workers Demand Increase of Wages.

UNYIELDING ATTITUDE SHOWN

Suspension of Mining Seems More Imminent Now Than at Any Other Time Since Negotiations Began. Operators of Department of Justice on the Scene—Statements by Lewis and Warriner.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 21.—With operators of the United States department of justice on the scene in quest of information regarding the probability of a strike in the hard coal fields, Sept. 1, the anthracite wage conference struck another snag.

Despite the government intervention which brought miners and operators together again, a suspension of mining seems more imminent now than at any other time since the negotiations began.

The question of increased wages was added to the growing list of demands on which the operators and miners not only fail to agree, but show an absolutely unyielding attitude. The miners have asked for an increase of twenty per cent for contract miners and $2 a day for day workers.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, declared that not only could this increase be absorbed by the operators without adding it to the price of coal, but insisted that for the past three years the operators have been collecting from the public $30,000,000 a year which has been added to the price of coal in 1920 for the purpose of paying a greater increase in wages than was granted in that year. Samuel D. Warriner, spokesman for the operators, denied that the operators increased the price of coal in 1920 sufficiently to meet the wage increases granted that year. He insisted that to grant the present demand of the miners on the matter of wage increases alone would add at least $2 per ton to the mine cost of coal.

During the conference, Mr. Lewis insisted that the miners must be granted a substantial pay increase in order to meet the increasing cost of living, and also equalize pay in the anthracite and bituminous fields. The much discussed question of the check-off, on which the miners and operators are now deadlocked was not mentioned during the discussions. Mr. Lewis made it plain, however, that the laying aside temporarily of this question had no significance and indicated that this troublesome question would have to be settled before an agreement is reached.

CALLS IN HAMMOND

President Coolidge Has Further Conference on Coal Situation.

Washington, Aug. 21.—President Coolidge called in Chairman John Hays Hammond, of the United States coal commission, for a further conference on the coal situation. At the conclusion of the conference Chairman Hammond said the president had discussed with him further plans for dealing with the coal issue in event the miners and operators are unable to reach an agreement at the joint conference at Atlantic City. The government will be prepared for eventualities, he declared. Chairman Hammond indicated that there will be no interference by the commission for ten days, unless it became apparent in the meantime that no agreement could be reached. Both sides, he said, will be given every opportunity to work out a solution before the present contract expires Sept. 1.

Three Drown.

Cincinnati, Aug. 21.—Three persons drowned in the Ohio river in the vicinity of Cincinnati. They were: Edward Beck, 26, North Bend, drowned near Andersons Ferry; Joseph Seas, 21, drowned at Fernbank dam; Frank Muenich, 18, drowned at the foot of Foster street, east end.

Shoots Wife, and Self.

Toledo, Aug. 21.—Harry Brown, ex-army officer, shot and fatally wounded his wife, Mrs. Jennie Brown, here, in the presence of one of their two children. Brown then turned the gun on himself. He is in a serious condition. Mrs. Brown died in a hospital. She recently sued for divorce.

Organist Killed.

Toledo, Aug. 21.—Catherine Menke, 16, organist in St. Rose's church, Perryburg, was killed in an automobile collision.

H. H. RAEGE

DOINGS IN OHIO

Klan Meetings Banned.

Stuebenville, O., Aug. 21.—In an effort to prevent further outbreaks between members of the Ku Klux Klan and citizens, city council will be asked to pass an ordinance prohibiting all parades and public meetings until feeling between the factions subsides. Mayor Frank A. Hawkins, backed by Safety Director E. M. Geary and Police Chief Blaine Carter, has ordered that the proposed konklave and parade, scheduled for Thursday night, not be held.

Would Boost Car Fare.

Delaware, O., Aug. 21.—The Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric company, operating city streetcars here, will seek an increase in rates from 5 cents to 8 cents, two tickets for 15 cents, four for 25 cents, or weekly passes for $1. The company claims they operate the city line at a loss between $8,000 and $14,000 annually. The city council will be called upon to pass on the increase proposal.

Class of 174 to Graduate.

Columbus, Aug. 21.—Buckeyes predominate in the first summer graduating class at Ohio State university. Commencement is scheduled for Aug. 31 in the University chapel. Of 174 prospective graduates, 158 are from Ohio. The remaining 16, however, include representatives from eight other states and far away India and China.

Bullet Wounds May Prove Fatal.

Cleveland, Aug. 21.—Roy E. Gresham, 30, a broker, is in a hospital with two bullet wounds in the abdomen, which it is feared will prove fatal, the result of a shooting in his home at Lakewood. His brother-in-law, Joseph Herman, is held by police pending their completion of an investigation into the circumstances.

Former Judge Dead.

Urbana, O., Aug. 21.—David W. Todd, 87, former probate judge and former prosecuting attorney of Champaign county, died at his home here from infirmities of old age. Mr. Todd was a veteran of the Civil war, having been lieutenant colonel of the 134th Ohio volunteer infantry.

Truck Struck Plank.

Warren, O., Aug. 21.—Howard Bortz, 40, of Warren, was fatally injured near Niles. His truck struck a plank, hurling it into the car, injuring his leg. He died from loss of blood.

Car Overturned.

Akron, O., Aug. 21.—E. J. Schaffer, 37, a business man of this city, was killed and his son-in-law, Thomas A. Knatt and Mrs. Knatt were seriously injured when their car overturned while driving through Gary, Ind.

Lad Loses Life.

Lima, O., Aug. 21.—Clarence Kuntz, 10, of Wapakoneta, was drowned while swimming with three other boys in an abandoned stone quarry near Bluebell, about eight miles from Lima.

Cut Throat With a Penknife.

Chillicothe, O., Aug. 21.—Martin Rupp, 80, who cut his throat with a penknife, died in the city hospital here. Ill health was given as the cause for the suicide.

BARNES HEADS DELEGATION

Big Business Tells the President What It Wants.

SEEKS REVISION OF TAX LAWS

Opposes Any Form of Government Ownership or Operation of Railroads or Mines and Would Have Government Get Out of Shipping Business—Favors Freer Flow of Immigrants to This Country.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Big Business called at the white house and was closeted with President Coolidge for an hour.

The delegation, headed by Julius H. Barnes, president of the United States chamber of commerce, included a half dozen other leaders of that organization and the international chamber of commerce.

The callers admitted, after the conference, that they told President Coolidge what big business wants from his administration along domestic lines. They did not say what they told him they wanted as a foreign policy.

Organized business wants a general revision of federal taxation, with a lowering of the super income and profits taxes. The president was told the present tax laws are driving capital into unproductive investments. A readjustment along the lines proposed, they argued, would encourage investment in industry and release money into trade that is now tied up in tax exempt securities to escape taxation.

Big business wants the government to get out and stay out of business. The president was told the government should get entirely out of the shipping business and permit the return of the merchant marine to private ownership and operation. For a week the president has been giving close study to a merchant marine policy, with frequent conferences with members of the shipping board.

Any form of government ownership, operation or control of railroads was beyond the present limitations of the interstate commerce commission and the transportation acts. "Permissible" consolidation of railroads into regional systems along lines outlined a year ago by the interstate commerce commission was approved as a general proposition. Government ownership, operation or control of coal mines and other essential resources is opposed by organized business, the same as it opposes governmental control of land and water transportation.

The setting up of a separate board to manipulate the present sliding scale tariff act was asked for. This work now is being done by the tariff commission.

Drastic restrictions on immigration were approved, but big business asked for a freer flow of foreign people into this country than the present immigration law permits. It was proposed that the 3 per cent quota limit now in effect be raised to 5 per cent. This would add approximately a third of a million immigrants a year to supply the demand for more industrial workers.

WIRES FOR FUNDS

Carson, Companion of Clara Phillips, Has a Story to Uncover.

New York, Aug. 21.—Jesse C. Carson, companion of Clara Phillips, the Los Angeles "hammer murderer," in her adventures in Honduras that ended in her recapture, sits twiddling his thumbs nervously in a West Side hotel here wondering when his funds are coming from California. Carson, who is long and lean and whose hair is red, is full of revolutionary conversation, but when Clara is mentioned he is silent. He says he has wired for funds to Los Angeles to get him back to the land of oranges, and when he gets there he will uncover a story that he avers will be a "wow." He is going to make things hot for the American minister in Honduras, among other things, he says.

Boys Disappear From School.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Eighteen boys have mysteriously disappeared from the Chicago parental school, according to charges made during an investigation of the conduct of the school. The investigation was held in criminal court before Judge Michael J. Kinley, chief justice. It was launched after James "Wright," a 14-year-old inmate, was found hanging in a cell. Whether the boy committed suicide or was killed and strung up is to be determined by the court.

BIG RACE ASSURED

English Derby Winner to Go Against America's Best.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 21.—The great international $100,000 thoroughbred race is on. Papyrus, winner of England's famous classic, the Epsom derby, will meet an American 3-year-old which will be picked through the medium of a test race on Oct. 20 at Belmont park, New York.

The final arrangements for the event, certain to be of world-wide interest, were concluded by a cablegram by Major August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey club of New York.

The race will be under the auspices of the Jockey club, and it will be run over the mile and half route. The winner will receive $80,000 and the loser $20,000.

OVERTURES MADE TO WILL H. HAYS

Coolidge Men Urge Him as Republican Manager.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Will H. Hays again is being seriously considered for his old job as chairman of the Republican national committee when reorganization is effected for the 1924 campaign.

Definite overtures have been made to him, it was learned, to give up his position as director general of the movie interests and get back into the political game as the Republican manager. These overtures have come from Coolidge boosters, who already are laying wires to land the nomination for the president.

It is not the first time Hays has been mentioned for return to the chairmanship, which he gave up when he became postmaster general in the Harding cabinet. The late president had him in mind before he started on his ill-fated western trip. At that time New York was urging Charles D. Hilles, who managed the Taft campaign in 1912, and Harding thought well of him, too, although Hays was believed to be his first choice.

There are several reasons why some of the Coolidge boosters believe the selection of Hays would be a stroke of political sagacity. In the first place Hays is from Indiana. Secondly, Indiana is likely to be a "pivot" state. Hays, it is believed, could do more in reconciling the factions of Republicans in Indiana than anyone else who might be chosen for the chairmanship.

Sheriff Stain.

Brookville, Ind., Aug. 21.—Sheriff William Van Camp of Franklin county, was shot to death by two automobile bandits, eight miles east of here. The bandits were in an automobile, believed stolen. It bore an Ohio license. They shot the sheriff when he attempted to stop them to examine the machine.

Value of a High Aim.
A glorious aim reacts in vitalizing ministry upon the entire being. It is curative. A big holy aim is very hostile to the petty ailments of the mind, as it is also very destructive of the mean diseases of the heart. And through a healthier mind and heart we give ourselves a chance of more exuberant physical health. Perhaps it is true, in a larger way than we usually think, that "He shall quicken your mortal bodies by his spirit that dwelleth in you."

Opportunity to Be Seized.
A porter in London was engaged in cleaning a luggage van, when the door swung back, striking him violently on the head. "Oh! Pat," he exclaimed to an Irishman standing on the platform, "I believe I've cut open my head." "Well, begor, now's the time to get something into it," was Pat's witty reply.

ODD COMMUNITY BARS OUT WOMEN

Athos Peninsula in Greece Has One of the Strangest Governments in the World.

Washington.—"The Athos peninsula in Greece, to which the patriarch of Constantinople, head of the Greek church, has retired because of pressure from the Turkish government, is one of the queerest communities and has one of the strangest governments in the world," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"On the 200 odd square miles of this rough peninsula which lacks little of being an island. It has been unlawful since the year 1045 for a woman to set foot. Moreover, domestic animals are barred! Even the eggs and milk that the good monks of Athos eat and drink must come from farms safely across the border of the strange monastic republic.

Treasures of Byzantium.

"The entire peninsula is given up to monasteries of which there are 20, mostly on the slopes or cliffs of Mount Athos, the 6,350-foot promontory that raises near the outer end of the headland.

"There are one or more monasteries for each of the countries, or in some cases the communities that accept the Greek rite—Greece, Russia, Serbia, Bulgaria, Anatolia, Constantinople and many others.

"The monasteries are today one of the richest repositories of the illuminated manuscripts, statues, paintings, mosaics and other works of art produced in the heyday of that gilded eastern Rome.

"The monks of Mount Athos have traditions of the beginnings of their establishments as early as the days of Constantine the Great, about 300 A. D. But history tells of the foundation of the earliest of the present monasteries, that of Lavra, in 969. The latest was established in 1545, a century after the fall of Byzantium.

"The monasteries are in every conceivable situation; some on gentle slopes near the sea, some on lofty crags overlooking the beating surf, and others inland on shoulders of the sacred mountain. All consist of walled spaces in which are churches, chapels, dwelling houses or dormitories, guest abodes, libraries, and in the case of the establishments under a nonindividualistic regime, refectories. The East has always been turbulent, and Mount Athos knows its east; so all the inclosures are fortified.

Has Queer Government.

"The government of Mount Athos has been republican in form for more than 800 years—since 1060, six years before the Normans conquered England. Each monastery elects a representative who is sent to the centrally situated village of Karyes, which is the capital. There the delegate occupies a dwelling owned by his abbey and constituting a sort of 'embassy' building.

"The twenty representatives sit as the most blessed assembly of the sacred mount, a parliament more venerable than that of London, if that body be dated from the recognition of the elective principle. The executive of Mount Athos is a body of five monks chosen by the monasteries voting in groups of four. Four of these executives each keeps in his custody a quarter of the great seal of the 'republic' and the fifth, the secretary, carries a handle which locks the fragments properly together."

Daughters Sue Father for Pay for Their Work

Kansas City, Mo.—Frederick Lieser, a Lafayette county farmer, is defendant in suits for remuneration for personal services filed by his daughters.

Edna Lieser, thirty-six, asks $10,000 as pay at $600 a year from the time she reached her eighteenth birthday.

Lena Lieser, fifty-four, asks $21,100 on the same basis, less $500 paid to her in cash in 1921.

Frederick Lieser, who is eighty-two years old, originally owned a 440-acre farm near Corder, Mo. The daughters say they were induced to remain on the farm and work on the promise that they would be paid and would be remembered in the father's will.

Recently Lieser sold 220 acres of the farm.

Ancient Coins Found at Foot of Mt. Etna

Rome.—Interesting relics in the form of two large brass vases filled with pieces of gold, and believed by experts to belong to a period 300 or 400 years B. C., have, by order of the government, been removed from Ognina, which is situated at the foot of Mount Etna, to Rome.

The vases were discovered in a fissure in the ground under an old wall, after a slight earthquake, by a deaf and dumb peasant. The news of the find only reached the authorities when the peasant offered the vases for sale to collectors.

Bulgaria Field for U. S. Trade.
Sofia, Bulgaria.—The American consul here believes Bulgaria offers an excellent market for manufactured articles of many kinds. He is Graham H. Kemper and he says the value of the market is evidenced by the desire of foreigners to share in it.

Spain Slightly Spanish.

There is a tango palace in Seville. If you buy a cup of coffee, a beer or a bottle of wine you can watch the dancing. If you wish to dance you may ask the girl at the next table. Guess how many of the girls are wearing Spanish shawls or Spanish corsets or mantillas? Not one. The same number of girls are wearing the dapper-brimmed shiny black hats that Spanish girls invariably wear on the American stage. One thing Spanish about Spain, so far as observed, is the railroad service. There are about four express trains in the whole country. Beyond that, you travel at an average of ten to fifteen miles an hour. One train a day in each direction. No connections. Another thing Spanish I discovered was a lovely fan—those gay Spanish fans that are a part of the dances, you know. Of course, I bought it to take home for a present. It is really beautiful. Only I see on close examination that it's stamped "Made in Japan."—Exchange.

When Phil May Lost His Horse.

Phil May, the English black-and-white artist, was notoriously absent-minded. According to his colleague, Edwin Ward, he arrived one day at the Savage club on horseback and left his horse in charge of a club servant. After a time, the man holding the horse called the attention of the hall porter and asked if Mr. May was in the club. "No," said the porter, "he left an hour ago." The members were consulted and eventually the horse was put in a livery stable in the neighborhood. Several days elapsed and Phil again appeared at the club. "Most extraordinary thing," he said, "I've lost my horse. I started from home with it all right a few days ago, but for the life of me I can't remember what became of it." After a little they relieved his mind by producing the missing animal.

Make "Chamois" of Sheepskin.

The term "chamois" is a misnomer today; for although this leather was originally prepared from the skin of the chamois of southern Europe, it is now made from sheepskin, and the term refers to the process and not to the actual leather. The part of the sheep used for "chamois" is the underskin, which until recently was discarded as of no value. At one time doeskin was also used for making "chamois" gloves, but doeskin has a value of its own and is not often employed now in the preparation of chamois leather.—Manchester Guardian.

"Oil Birds" of Peru.

A band of outlaws have their home on the Huallaga river in Peru. There are no laws and no taxes, and most of the inhabitants are fugitive murderers. In this domain is the cave of the "oil birds." The cave is mammoth and as beautiful as those in fairy tales, much like a cathedral on the inside. Hundreds of thousands of birds have their home here. The young of the species are exceptionally fat, and the natives squeeze them and make something much like oil from them. The oil is used for everything from curing rheumatism to eating.

Work of Birds Indispensable.

The tree sparrow feeds chiefly on weed seed; the Baltimore oriole on caterpillars; the grackle is a "neutral bird," doing as much harm as good; the bobolink is almost entirely an insect feeder; there is no laboratory proof that the bluejay feeds extensively on other birds or their eggs; the kingbird has fondness for honey bees—and so on down the list of the government's investigations of the food habits of birds. Take away the birds and the crop growing fields and the orchards of this country would be so quickly overrun with insect plagues that their destruction would well nigh threaten famine.

Bird Couldn't Understand.

A cockatoo performed the service of acting as a fire alarm. Everybody, barring the cockatoo, was sound sleep, and when the smoke got into its eyes it screeched till it awoke the occupants of the house, and the fire escape did the rest. But, though the bird had given the warning of danger, it could not conceive what the danger was. It watched the proceedings with curiosity and indignation, and when it was seized, bundled out of a window and down a ladder it screamed, indignantly: "What's up with you all?"

Maybe She Sleeps Wednesdays.

A woman, no longer in the blush of her first youth, was trying to overcome the reluctance of a little girl to retire for the night. "Being six years old," she said, "you should go to bed at six. When you are seven you may stay up till seven, and when you are eight you will not have to retire till eight." The child gazed thoughtfully, with a mental arithmetic look, at the kindly face, with its crown of gray hair and remarked: "Then I suppose you never go to bed at all."—Toronto Globe.

Carajas a Teasty People.

Although the Carajas of Brazil are a kindly-disposed people, with many simple and child-like qualities, they are quickly roused to wrath. If one displeases them, for instance, by being too sparing with one's gifts, they will mutter "Ebina, ebina" (it is very bad) to one another, and will crowd round one until, a little alarmed perhaps by their jostling and scowling, one forks out a liberal supply of presents; while to favor one and not another is as good as asking for trouble on the spot.—World Wide Magazine.

HOOSIER

—the Kitchen Cabinet that saves miles of steps

—the Only Kitchen Convenience that Adjusts Your Work-Table to Suit Your Height

Gymnasium instructors have a little trick of asking new members of their classes to hold their hands above their heads and open and close their fingers. After a minute or two the student usually suffers an acute pain in the muscles. Yet opening and closing the fingers is a simple, natural operation. It's the unnatural position in which the arms are held which wears one out.

Unless your work-table is adjusted to the proper height to suit your individual build, you stand in an unnatural position which puts a muscle strain on arms and back for such movements as rolling dough and beating eggs.

That is why so many women wear themselves out at their kitchen work. It is also why women who own the new HOOSIER are freed from such muscle-strains. For the new HOOSIER gives you a work-table adjusted to your comfort.

An initial payment as low as $1.00 will put a HOOSIER in your home.

Sleeveless Gowns Welcomed Fashion

Comfort Is Chief Attraction; Graceful Shoulder Lines.

Nobody knows how it happened, but this season sleeveless gowns have refused to take any part in the cast-off garments designed for afternoon wear, declares a fashion writer in the Detroit News. Heretofore they have starred as a feature in most of the modish gowns and true as the old adage that "a man is known by the company he keeps," so the up-to-dateness of a gown was gauged by the sleeve it attached. Then, having been the one distinguishing note, with every whim for the unusual humored to nth degree, sleeves suddenly repudiated old associates and retired from the frock entirely.

So the modern afternoon gown billows, clings or trails, as the case may be, but altogether innocent of anything that could be construed as a sleeve, and accepts the abbreviation quite as a matter of course.

No gown that has been deserted by a pair of sleeves is going to display any chagrin over the matter, and there really isn't any reason to take it much to heart, for the long, graceful shoulder lines that supplant the erstwhile sleeve have a charm all their own. Add to this the comfort of a sleeveless gown on a torrid afternoon and Fashion can snap her fingers in the face of the sleeve and care not a jot for its retirement.

So the fact is established that for afternoon wear, gowns are without sleeves. Looking back on the models of the past year discovers a hint of what has come about in the shorter and shorter lengths, the open shoulder seam and other innovations that have paved the way for complete disappearance of what was once considered a very essential part of the afternoon frock. But while the sleeve has been eliminated, skirts have been elongated, so there is no economy of material to be discovered in the new modes that confront femininity.

Lovely and Graceful.

Boldly stated, a gown for afternoon devoid of sleeves sounds rather shocking. But no matter how it sounds to talk about it, to observe it is to lose every scruple the vocal proclamation has conjured. Sleeveless gowns are lovely and graceful, and ingratiating, appearing as casual, as perfectly correct, as anything in the way of a frock could possibly be. So, no matter what preconceived notions there are, one glance removes them. That is why the sleeveless gown has established its place in the realm of fashion, accepted by those who delight in combining beauty with comfort.

Every kind of soft, clinging fabric is used in the fashioning of these gowns. Volles in innumerable subtle tints, combined with delicate laces, are the very essence of summer at her happiest. Often a yoke of embroidered material edged with frills of filmy lace, follows the round neck line and drops just a wee bit over the upper arm at the shoulder. Not so that it can be classed as a sleeve, oh, no! To call it a sleeve would be a fatal mistake and quite beyond the scope of the most healthy imagination.

Very Beautiful Black Dinner Gown in Satin, Satin Back Moire with Hem of Malines and Very Simply Trimmed With Blue Flowers at Waistline. Earrings of Pearl With Pearl and Sapphire Bracelet.

If there must be something on the arm in lieu of a sleeve, let it be bracelets, or a bracelet. Either is correct, for the band may be a broad affair of platinum or silver set with precious stones, or there may be any number of very narrow silver and jet bands loosely circling the arm.

Nor is the field of sleeveless gowns constricted to the afternoon function. They are seen on the street, and in nifty little frocks for sports wear. In fact, it isn't half so much the occasion, as the arm, that regulates the wearing of the sleeveless gown, for the good-looking arm has a chance to show its points of beauty on nearly all occasions—while, naturally, the arm less attractive isn't so generally inclined to display.

Chiffon Popular.

Delightfully graceful and cool-looking are the chiffon models over slips of silk, the chiffon overdress trimmed in self material with cascading bands down the side. One particularly beautiful gown of this kind in delicate yet vivid blue has for its only trimming a beaded girdle at the low waistline, the beads of the same color combined with crystal and iridescent hues. It was the one touch of brightness that finished the gown.

Batik silks, designed for sports wear, are combined with plain silk of matching shade, sans sleeves, of course, the long batik overblouse plainly banded and caught loosely at the hip in a few straight gathers. The skirt, following the design of the blouse, has the plain band at the bottom and up the sides, bordering a panel of the batik silk. In this gown the plain band drops low on the shoulder, covering the extreme upper part of the arm. But sleeves—there are none.

Plain faille silk is banded with plain material in contrasting color, the fastening at the girdle carrying the Greek key design, and over the left hip ribbon, tied in a careless bow. Extremely simple is this frock, yet it expresses style in its every line. Here the shoulder seam is long, forming a little cap at the top of the arm.

Work for Vacation Days.

Vacation days need not necessarily be idle days. Many a woman prefers to have some bit of sewing or knitting to occupy her fingers during those afternoons when the porch seems the only livable spot.

There are many smart accessories now, easily made, that not only furnish up the summer frocks and give style to the organdies or crepes that are losing their freshness, but also afford pleasant summer pastime.

Fancy bandeaux for the hair, composed of ribbon, flowers and perky bows require only a few stitches and they are ever so attractive.

The craze for bracelets has revived the old fashion of black velvet bands for the wrist above the elbow with trimmings of fancy buckles or clusters of flowers.

One New York debutante has popularized the fad of wearing an inch-wide velvet band tightly about each wrist, fastened with a pink satin rose. She wears these with sleeveless frocks and the effect is charming.

Another fad is for corsages, worn directly in the front, made of cascades of flowers and colored ribbons, almost resembling the bridal shower bouquet.

The matching jacket and hat of gay cretonne is a very smart accessory to any costume, and if one makes the coat sleeveless, the question of fit is greatly modified.

Make Hand-Painted Hats.

Hand-painted hats are very smart and easy to make. Simply buy a white or colored felt, with a small water color brush and a little oil paint or dye, transpose thereon your favorite flowers. If you prefer conventional designs, stick to angles and lines. To show your interest in the recent Egyptian excavations, you can copy an Egyptian motif.

If you are afraid of your freehand efforts, stencils will make the work much simpler. You can make your stencils or buy them.

Slipper buckles are made of lace and ribbon arranged rosette fashion about clusters of flowers or buckles set with brilliants. Beaded stockings are quite a fad and are easily made. Steel beads are very effective as well as colors to match the frocks.

Dame Fashion is well equipped to furnish work for idle hands.

Simple Light Changes.

When a different lighting scheme is desired by the hostess for her party, it is not necessary for her to change the expensive shades of her floor and other lamps. A new colored glass cover is purchasable at home furnishing stores and is obtainable in any hue or tint preferred. It covers the bulb or bulbs of the lamp.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

UNITED STATES MAKING IRON AS AN EXPERIMENT

Bureau of Mines Is Attempting to Solve Some Problems.

Washington.—The United States government is now making iron, but only as an experiment and not for the commercial field. Its blast furnace is located at Minneapolis and is operated as a laboratory by the bureau of mines in co-operation with the University of Minnesota. After four years of experimentation to develop it, the furnace recently produced several tons of gray iron and spiegeleisen.

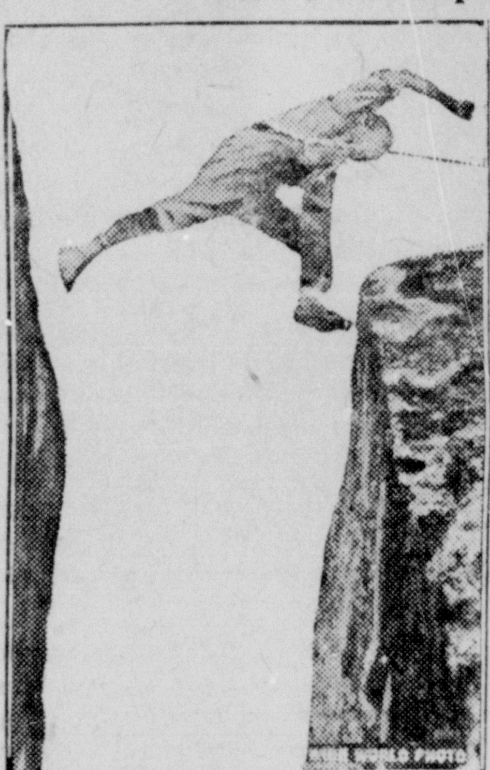

This type of experiment is declared unique in the field of industrial research, as blast furnaces are not included usually in laboratory equipment. But with the demonstration showing every phase of the operation of iron-making under complete technical control, it is believed the investigators at the Minneapolis station are in a position to undertake the study of various problems, the solution of which should be of great practical value to blast furnace operators.

The furnace was operated first as a slagging type gas producer until it had reached a steady state thermally and chemically. Iron ore without the addition of a flux then was introduced, and its descent in the furnace was followed by means of gas samples taken at various stations. When the effect of this charge had been dissipated, more ore was charged without limestone, and other sets of samples were taken.

The purpose is to obtain a comparison of the gas composition at various planes of the furnace. Various sizes of ore also were used. The reduction of the ore at the stockline was found to be greater with smaller sized ore, as indicated by higher carbon dioxide.

One of the most important problems that will be worked out with the experimental furnace will be that of finding a means of extracting iron from the low-grade ores found especially in northern Minnesota.

Paderewski Purchases Tickets to Own Show

Paris.—Ignace Jan Paderewski, the famous Polish pianist and composer, received one of the heartiest welcomes accorded him since his return to the concert stage when he appeared before a Paris audience recently.

The French press retold at great length the story of how the noted artist was expelled from Russia years ago by Emperor Alexander III, after Paderewski had played before the court.

"You are a great artist, and an honor to Russia," the emperor is reported to have said.

"Pardon, your majesty," replied Paderewski. "To Poland."

The next day the pianist received an order to leave Russia, and he has never returned since.

The newspapers here also mentioned the fact that on the day of his first concert, Paderewski drove to the theater box office and purchased nearly 100 seats at regular prices, which he distributed among his friends.

Civil War Bills Bring $2.80. Snake Falls Out of Spigot With Water

A black and yellow snake, about five inches long, fell from the spigot in the home of John Newman, at Taunton, Mass., when Mrs. Newman drew a bucket of water. The city's drinking water is drawn from a lake 12 miles away, and the snake traveled through the pipes from there to the Newman home, it is believed.

Botha's Strategy. One day during the Boer war the arduous march to Windhoek in the broiling sun was particularly trying. General Botha cheerily told his men to buck up, as he hoped to finish the campaign and be home in time for his wife's birthday. His men cheered, and toiled on in good heart. But by and by one of them asked the date of Mrs. Botha's birthday. "Oh! that is a secret!" was the reply, and then the men realized that the laugh was against them.

FOOD CLUB

Logan Elm Girls Will Make Exhibit at Ohio State Fair.

Mrs. B. W. Young, leader of the Logan Elm Food club reports that her girls will make an exhibit at the Ohio State fair this coming week in competition with Food clubs from all over Ohio.

During the summer months the members of the club have canned 1616 pints of fruits and vegetables; have prepared 104 dishes for their home tables; have planned 100 meals; baked 48 dozen rolls and 46 dozen quick breads.

In addition to these, a number of glasses of jelly have been made, and the girls have a number of bakings of bread to their credit.

This club is one of the active ones in Pickaway county, and deserves much credit for making such a large record even before the main canning season has arrived.

POSTPONING OLD AGE.

Old age is as inevitable as death and taxes. But the term "old age" is elastic; some persons are old at 50 years; some are young at 80. A witty Frenchman said once that a man is as old as his arteries, which is partly true, since the condition of the arteries is a pretty fair indication of the state of the other tissues and organs. Many physicians believe that the degenerative changes that are characteristic of old age begin in the arteries and appear later in the other tissues as a consequence of the diminished supply of blood and of impure blood. One theory is that the arterial thickening and hardening invariably found in the aged (the aged as measured by diminished function and not by years) are owing to autointoxication acting thru many years; the poisons in the blood cause degenerative changes in the walls of the arteries. Another theory is that senility depends on changes in the cells and tissues caused by a principle in them that leads in early life to growth and in later life to decay. But whatever the theories, and there are many of them they all lead to the same conclusion; depending in the case of one person on an inherited constitution and in the case of another on the mode of life he has followed, the period at which old age begins, varies within wide limits, and, barring an inexorable inheritance, the individual can do much to postpone it. Unfortunately, the time to begin is early adult life, just when old age seems so remote as to be negligible.

The secret of postponing old age lies in observing temperance in the broad sense of the word—moderation in everything; in eating, in coffee drinking and tea drinking, in sleeping in exercising, in working and indeed in every phase of human existence. Athletes are not long-lived; neither are those who are too strenuous in business, nor those who worry. The obese are usually short-lived for the reason that they are likely to be heavy eaters or to have defective nutritive organs. Breathing fresh air day and night and walking moderately without missing a day are essential to long life, as they are essential to health—Youth's Companion.

COLORED MAN INJURED.

Andy Jones, colored and married, claiming Edgefield, North Carolina, as his home, was injured this morning in the Norfolk & Western railroad yards when he was trying to jump on a train. HARDWOOD IN PAPER MAKING

Scrap Lumber Goes Into Great Chipping Machine Then to Digester

Mill on Twenty-Four Hour Schedule Produces 26,480 Pieces and 1,000 Shipping Boxes—Rouge Plant Eliminates Waste Wherever Possible.

Wood pulp produced from hard wood for use in paper making is the latest attainment at the River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor company.

It is the first time in the history of the paper manufacturing industry that hard wood has been successfully converted by what is known as the "soda process" into pulp so that it could be utilized in the production of paper and therefore is an achievement of outstanding importance. Heretofore, spruce, poplar and similar soft woods have been looked upon as the only kinds available for paper manufacture.

Experiments covering several months were carried on before the River Rouge plant paper mill finally developed a process whereby hard wood could be used in the making of pulp. Now manufacture is being successfully carried out on a large scale with plans under way for increasing production as soon as new equipment can be installed.

The development of the new process enables the Ford Motor company to use all the scrap pieces from its body building plant at River Rouge, thus effecting a new economy in lumber conservation.

The scrap lumber goes into a great machine where it is chipped and then carried by suction pipes to an immense digester.

About 18,000 pounds or nine tons of chips are placed in the digester for one batch and average about 75 per cent hard maple, the remainder of oak ash, and other hard woods. To these are added 4500 gallons of caustic solution of sufficient strength to reduce the chips to a high quality fibre under seven hours cooking at 110 pounds steam pressure.

When the digesting process is completed the fibre is pumped into washing machines and thoroly cleansed. It comes out 100 per cent wood fibre ready for paper manufacture.

Production at the mill at present is confined to that of a superior quality binder board, .075 to .030 of an inch thick, of firm body, water proof and exceptionally durable.

The mill operating on a twenty-four hour schedule, daily produces 26,480 finished pieces and in addition turns out 1,000 boxes for shipping purposes.

This latest development at the River Rouge plant is in keeping with the company's general policy of eliminating waste wherever possible and of continually setting new and higher standards of manufacture so as to bring the utmost in quality.

Heavy Toll of Grain Smuts.

It would doubtless be safe to say that we are paying out annually as a price for what amounts to national negligence grain enough to fill an elevator of 90,000,000 bushels capacity. This vast and really inexcusable toll is exacted by preventable smuts. It is a waste of sufficient wheat to supply our allies with 4,000,000 barrels of flour, and oats enough to feed 1,100,000 horses for a year. The simple and inexpensive formaldehyde treatment of seed will save most of this loss.

Origin of Goldfish.

Goldfish are the result of the elimination of the somber colors in a variety of carp by selective breeding begun by the Chinese and Japanese in the Sixteenth century.

MASONIC PICNIC.

The first annual picnic of the eighth Masonic district, composed of Greene, Fayette, Pickaway and Clinton counties, will be held at Bryan farm, Yellow Springs, Ohio, September 3, Labor day.

No male person over twenty-one who is not a Mason will be eligible. This will be a basket dinner. The grand master and other distinguished guests will be present.

REAL ESTATE DEAL.

Mrs. Minnie DeBolt has sold a tract of land, 2.21 acres in Monroe township this county, to Joseph Phillips.

LAUNDRY SMOKE CASE.

The court of appeals met here Monday with Judges W. H. Middleton and Roscoe Mauck on the bench to hear an application for a temporary injunction restraining the emission of smoke and soot from a laundry at Circleville.

Attorneys here from Circleville to argue the case were Charles H. May, Irvin F. Snyder and Abernethy Simkins. The case will be finally decided in September.—Scioto Gazette.

Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"Kelly," said the Hotel Stenographer, "that guy who blurted a little learning is a dangerous thing wrote a pageful."

"You don't know much!" said the Hotel Detective.

"I know enough to know that there is such a thing as a psychoanalyst," replied the girl.

"It that one of these finger print fellows?"

"A psychoanalyst," explained the girl, "is a man who takes finger prints of your mind. He asks you questions you would smack any other man in the mouth about and gets you to tell him your dreams and hits you just below the knee when your feet are crossed and a lot of things like that and then adds it all up and subtracts your environment and tells you you ought to stop bootlegging and go to writing verses for summer resort picture postals.

"The guy who psychoed me found out that my father was red headed and my mother was a tall woman and then told me I would never be happy so long as my fingers danced a clog on the keys of that typewriter and that my forte was in some branch of art. I can't sing Mother Macree, anything draw has but one dimension and no proportion, so I guess I will have to be a writer.

"I gave that bird five bucks for the info he gave me about my life, but now I'm going to get it back is more than I can see unless I write a few scenarios. Anybody who can get together a blue-eyed heroine with a ready lachrymal duct, a hairy chested hero and a miser with a mortgage can write scenario.

"I have another qualification, too, Kelly. I have a good sense of humor and I do not see how anybody can write a good sob scenario without a sense of humor, for most of them are too funny for words. But, anyhow, I know what I am fit for now even if I never did paint anything but parts of my own face."

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

At the second session of the Pickaway county institute now being held at the Circleville high school building Professor Warren spoke on "Appreciation as Applied to Beginners" and Professor Evans spoke on "Kipling," the poet of romantic reality.

W. S. Coy, who is the manager of the Reading Circle, explained its workings and told of the retirement system.

Some Difficulties.

It is almost as difficult for some women to get their hats on in the evening as it is for the men to get theirs on in the morning.

SWIMMERS

Bryon Eby Won Bathing Suit for Finishing First in Race.

Conditions for trial spins, made by local swimmers, Sunday, who are entered in the Ohio State Journal swimming meet at Indianola park, on Friday, were not ideal. Just as the crowd was getting set at the Yellowbud pond showers chased them and it was not until after the rain had ceased that the swimmers put on their stuff.

In the men's race Byron Eby, local high school lad, won by two yards from Fred "Cotton" Corcoran, in the slow time of 36 3/5 seconds. In a practice spin previous to the race, Eby bettered this time by a full second and probably could have done three or four seconds better if pushed.

Quite a crowd saw the contest, after which Corcoran and Eby gave demonstrations of Red Cross Life Saving corps stunts. Both are members of the local corps and Yellowbud swimmers were invited to get their feet wet along this line of endeavor.

Eby won a fine bathing suit, offered by the Levy Clothing Co., of Chillicothe to the man finishing first.—Scioto Gazette.

Byron Eby, the young swimmer is a son of Eb Eby, proprietor of the New American Hotel.

Rubber Is Composite.

That rubber as it serves you is no direct tree-to-home affair, but that more than 500 different pigments and ingredients enter into it to make it usable, is pointed out by the chemical engineers of one of the tire manufacturers of Akron. These, he says, are vital to produce rubbers that meet the varying demands for toughness, elasticity and hardness. The rubber in the rubber band, the heel on your shoe, or the treads on your tires are not just simple vulcanized mixtures of rubber and sulphur. The compounds are complicated, they have long since passed from the stage of simplicity which they occupied practically until the development of the automobile got under way.

Molten Iron Won't Burn.

Not so many generations ago suspected criminals were forced to walk across a bed of hot coals in what was known as a "trial by ordeal." It was contended that if Providence prevented their being burned they must be innocent. To walk across blazing coals seems impossible, and yet recently a European inventor plunged his hand in a stream of molten iron without even being burned. Forced from a nozzle by air pressure, the white-hot metal was broken up into such small particles that it struck the flesh, cooled and fell away like dust so rapidly that no injury resulted. When spraying from the nozzle, however, it looked like a small piece of fireworks.

Cistern Water.

Generally the disagreeable odor and taste sometimes noticed in cistern water is due to the growth of an algae, a microscopic plant. Occasionally there may be a growth of moss or other material that will add to the trouble. Adding chloride of lime having about 35 per cent available chlorine in the proportion of one to three pounds per 100,000 gallons of water will kill the growth of bacteria and algae. It may be necessary to clean out the cistern thoroughly and wash the walls. However, do not do this until after trying the chlorinated lime. A pump that will stir up the water in the cistern, such as an ordinary chain pump, will prove beneficial.

Explain Carefully to Children.

It is characteristic of child nature to be slow to comprehend. This is natural to an untrained mind and would seem to be apparent to all. Yet, oftentimes, parents forget this fact and expect the child mind to comprehend at once, and render instant obedience. It is not strange that sometimes the little child instinctively prefers to do that with which it is already familiar, or acts slowly in doing something new and unfamiliar. If we are patient and reasonable in our demands and extend to children the same courtesy which we ask for ourselves, we shall have much less cause for discipline.

The American Abroad.

A Parisian woman, going to her children's playroom, discovered her little boy and girl absorbed in a remarkable game. The boy stood, motionless and solemn, on a small table in the middle of the room; the girl, arrayed in grown-up hat and coat, walked slowly around him, regarding him thoughtfully, now and then peering abstractedly into a red-covered book in her hand. "What are you doing, children?" asked the puzzled parent. "Oh, Pierre is the Column Vendome, mamma," gravely explained his sister, "and I am a tourist from America—with a book, you know."

Where Sardines Are Found.

Sardines are abundantly found off the Galician, Andalusian and Cantabrian coasts. This fish varies in length from approximately 4 1/2 to 7 1/2 inches and weighs from 24 to 68 grams (0.864 to 2.398 ounces); occasionally larger specimens are caught.

WOMEN ARE MAKING GOOD

Five Hundred Are in Employ of Norfolk & Western Railroad.

Mrs. W. H. Lamb, First Trick Operator in Circleville, Gets Good Writup in Company Magazine—Has Been in Service 24 Years.

The Norfolk & Western Magazine for August has a very interesting article on the women in the employ of the railroad and gives its readers a good picture of Mrs. M. H. Lamb at work in the tower in this city, and says some very complimentary things of her and about her work.

The Magazine says:

"One of our famous newspaper cartoon characters, Abe Martin, was once made to say: 'Women are jes' like elephants. They're nice to look at but who wants to own one?' It's a safe bet that the man who put these words into the mouth of Abe Martin is a widower, or a cynical old bachelor, else he couldn't have gotten away with a remark like that but who knows, perhaps he didn't escape. However, despite all the quips at her expense, it is still the hand of woman that rocks the cradle—and rules the world. She has an indispensable part in all the undertakings of man, always has had and always will have.

"Yet, with all of the many accomplishments to her credit, it was not until August 26, 1920 that the Nineteenth Amendment to the constitution of the United States was finally promulgated by the secretary of state, after having been ratified by a majority of the state legislatures. It was this amendment that gave to the women of our country the privilege to exercise a full share in the selection of our public officials who are entrusted with the reins of a government which we men have long proclaimed as a government of, by and for the people. So three years ago this month women became people.

"Just as in every other undertaking of importance in the world, woman has her share in the operation of the Norfolk & Western. How much of a share she has is not fully realized until one has had the opportunity to investigate, and having done this, we are going to present the results as best we can. We do not hope to be able to do the subject the justice it deserves and so we do not expect the applause to be deafening, the possibility some will be good enough to admit that our effort is about what could be expected of a mere man.

"There are approximately 500 women in the service of the Norfolk & Western (this figure includes both women and girls, but as we find it difficult to determine satisfactorily the line of demarcation, we feel much safer in speaking of them collectively as women) and the positions they hold range from that of stenographer and clerk all the way to chief clerks, division timekeepers, operators and agents. That you may have a better idea of some of the things our women are doing we will mention a few of them individually.

"Mrs. M. H. Lamb, first trick operator in the tower at Circleville, enjoys an enviable reputation as one who can always be relied upon to perform carefully and properly every duty assigned to her. One needs only to watch her for a while to realize the responsibility of her position and recognize her ability.

"At Circleville the tracks of the old Cincinnati & Muskingum Valley, now a part of the Pennsylvania lines, cross our rails and therefore the operator in this tower is charged with the safe movement of the trains of both lines thru the interlocking plant. Besides this, she also handles the gates at the public grade crossing near by, and the telegraph and telephone business, including train orders for trains on both railroads.

"She has a record of which she can feel proud, having been in the service of the company about 24 years and there are, as yet, no entries on the debit side of her record card. She has served in Circleville tower for twelve years and during that time there have been no accidents to trains, or to vehicles on the grade crossing which are chargeable to her in any way.

"Mr. Lamb is also an operator and at present is working the second trick in this office. They were married in Roxana, Ohio, on November 12, 1896, at which time Mrs. Lamb was an operator for the Pennsylvania lines at that point, and Mr. Lamb was the proprietor of a hotel, having temporarily forsaken his occupation as an operator. It was at Roxana that Mrs. Lamb learned telegraphy, holding her first office at Spring Valley on the same railroad. She was later transferred to Roxana.

"Mrs. Lamb served with the Pennsylvania lines for six years and has splendid written recommendations from the officials of that road, one of them being signed by Ralph Peters, who is now president of the Long Island lines. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lamb entered the service of the Norfolk & Western at Duvall on September 15, 1899, and later went to Delano where they remained until 1911 when they came to Circleville.

"They have one son, Sterling, now 18 years of age, and who graduated this year from Circleville high school and they intend sending him to college this fall. She says that she loves railroad work and could not think of giving it up yet. Isn't that typical of the average railroad worker who has been in the game long enough to feel its peculiar fascinating grip?

"She has the reputation of being just as good a housekeeper and cook as she is a telegrapher."

"Forget-Me-Not," which was shown for the first time yesterday at the Met theater is a picture which maketh the heart glad. Given a story human to the last degree with a cast which brings to each character a sympathetic impersonation and direction which shows unusual knowledge of life and especially of the heart of a child, the result is a picture which cannot fail to win favor with everyone who welcomes photoplays which are free from hoakum and which have some semblance to life as it really is.

"Forget-Me-Not" is a love story but it is more than that. It is the life story of two foundlings who find in their devotion for each other some compensation for the unkind fate which has deprived them of home and affection of parents. But even this consolation is denied them, for Jimmy is adopted by a rich woman and passes out of Ann's life to reappear under conditions that seem at the time to shatter her faith in the goodness of life.

"Forget-Me-Not" is a Louis Burston production for Metro in which Gareth Hughes and Bessie Love play the leading roles. They make the characters stand out with vivid lifelikeness. The story is by Henry R. Symmonds and is adapted by John B. Clymer. W. S. VanDyke is the director.

Historic trails

The Pennsylvania Railroad System is the short line between the West and East and carries annually about seventeen per cent of the total passenger traffic of America.

THE origin of the old Indian trails is shrouded in the mists of antiquity. For unnumbered centuries they were trod by the moccasined feet of savage warriors and later became the highway for the hardy pioneers in their Conestoga wagons.

They had been developed with unerring skill along the shortest available route over mountain and plain—taking advantage wherever possible of wild and picturesque gaps cut by onrushing streams in the everlasting hills of Pennsylvania.

The main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad between the West and East follows the old trails for many miles through the Alleghenies and the traveler of today enjoys splendid vistas of sylvan beauty as his journey leads him along those age-old paths.

River and railroad contest the way through the Packsaddle, Jacks Narrows, Lewistown Narrows and the Gaps of the Susquehanna. Moccasined feet and Conestoga wagons have given place to modern all-steel trains. But the pristine glories of nature in mountain and stream remain unchanged and untrivial.

PLAY THE GAME

By DOROTHY KNIGHT

"DO YOU mean to say there is no train out of this deserted village for five hours?"

"No, madam," replied the agent. "Isn't there any possible way of my getting to Vernon before that?"

The agent shook his head. The "deserted village" was Harris Junction, and it or its counterpart will be familiar to anyone who has ever traveled in the Middle West.

There was a small hotel labeled "Junction House."

"There is an automobile in front of that house. Do you think its owner would drive me to Vernon?"

"Well, you can ask him," said the agent, doubtfully.

She crossed the dusty street in the glaring sun, leaving four other travelers, who were also waiting for the five-hour-old train.

One of these was a very attractive young woman, who showed great sympathy with the older woman when she came back from her animated talk with the man across the street, with a slightly dejected expression.

"Oh, I'm so sorry you were not successful."

The older woman's face brightened at this sign of friendliness. She introduced herself as Mrs. Black, from New York, and started to tell her troubles.

"Well, of all the obstinate men! Would you believe it, Miss—" she hesitated.

"Mrs. Carlton."

"Is it awfully important that you should get there at once?"

"Well, I am very anxious to do so. Of course, it's not a life and death affair, but I am going to visit my mother, and I haven't seen her in years. It is to be a complete surprise. She has no idea I'm coming, and it's such a bore waiting here. I think the doctor might make an exception in my case, even if it is his rule never to leave except on a case. By the way, are you going in my direction?"

"Yes, to Winston, the next station beyond Vernon."

"Oh, I have an idea. Why don't you tell the doctor you are going to visit a sick relative? I'm sure he would go for anything important, and then I can go along, too. Will you?" She paused expectantly.

Mrs. Carlton blushed in embarrassment and perplexity. It was plainly to be seen that she did not want to do it, and yet she hated to refuse.

"Oh, well, if you have a New England conscience, you are excused."

"Well, I am from New England, but I'm afraid my conscience isn't that variety, for it was not inborn, as the good old New England conscience should be."

"That sounds interesting. Won't you tell me about it?"

"Why, it's my whole life story, but perhaps I can tell it briefly. I always went through life in a careless, happy-go-lucky way. I never thought I was exactly selfish, and I don't think my friends did, either. But I always wanted to do as I pleased without restrictions."

"Naturally, when the war came, and Jim and I were married, I thought I had to be permitted to go to France, where I would be able to see him whenever he could get a leave of absence, although I knew that there was an iron-bound rule against soldiers' wives going overseas. So I got across, and soon after, Jim came. But as fate had it, I never saw him once. He was wounded in his very first battle and invalided home."

"I learned I was only one individual cog in the universal machine, and important as my affairs might seem to me to be, they were really insignificant."

"I made a vow then and there that I would play the game strictly according to rules after that, and never claim exemptions from inconveniences, responsibilities or actual hardships."

Just as her story ended, they were startled by cries from the road, where there had been a slight automobile accident. The doctor rushed from his side of the road and Mrs. Carlton rushed from hers. The others, fearing they would be in the way, stayed where they were and watched anxiously as a woman was being carried into the doctor's house. The others were uninjured.

Soon Mrs. Carlton came back.

"Nothing serious. One woman was bruised a little and we bandaged her up. But she has a very weak heart, and the shock might have proved fatal had there been no doctor present to give the proper stimulant. But as it is, she is all right."

Mrs. Black turned pale as she realized there would have been no doctor present if she had had her way.

"Mr. and Mrs. Gregory and their friend, who was hurt, are from Vernon, so you will have a chance to go by machine, after all, and you will still save three hours."

"Mr. and Mrs. Gregory? Why, they are friends of—?" Then, in a frightened voice, "Who was the woman with them?"

"A Mrs. Walker, I think."

"Mother!"

When you buy a KELLY CORD TIRE you get the long mileage for which Kellys have always been famous. You also get the greatest degree of protection against skidding that has ever been obtainable in any tire.

A good tire deserves a good tube. In fact, without a good tube inside it the best of tires won't yield the service its makers have built into it. Kelly tubes are a real economy. They are made to help tires deliver the mileage for which Kellys have always been noted.

Corn Silage as Feed for Horses

Under Certain Conditions
Varieties of Molds Are Deadly Poisons.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Silage is a safe and useful feed for horses and mules if proper care is exercised in making and feeding it, says
the United States Department of Agriculture. There are certain precautions, however, which must be taken
if success is to be secured in the feeding of silage to this class of stock.

Horses and mules are peculiarly
susceptible to the effects of molds,
and under certain conditions varieties
of mold are found in silage which are deadly poisons to both horses and mules. Such molds are the result of either the improper cutting or packing of the silage or both. Molds must have air to grow and, therefore, silage
which is packed air-tight and fed out rapidly will not become moldy. If the feeder watches the silage carefully as
the weather becomes warm, he can soon detect the presence of mold. When mold appears the feeding should be stopped immediately. Similarly,
care should be exercised in the winter
feeding of silage, so that the horses
or mules are not allowed to eat frozen
silage because of the danger of colic,
which generally follows such practice.

Corn Silage Favored.

Corn silage is the only kind that so far has met with any degree of favor
as a horse and mule feed. Corn which is to be ensiled for use as a horse and mule feed should not be
cut too green, as sour silage will result, and this may cause colic when
fed. Corn for such feed, rather,
should be cut when it has begun to glaze and the silo should be filled as rapidly as possible, once the ensiling
process has been started. In filling
the silo it is essential that the corn
be carefully and thoroughly tramped
and packed. This is one of the most important points in connection with
the feeding of silage to horses and mules. Cutting the silage fine and in lengths less than one inch will facilitate packing. If tramping and packing is properly done no feeding danger is apt to result, but if it is improperly done air pockets may form
and cause the accumulation of a small mass of mold which, if overlooked in feeding, may be sufficient to kill one or more of the animals fed.

Substitute for Hay.

In feeding, silage should not be considered as the principal roughage for horses and mules, but rather should serve as a partial substitute for hay
in the daily ration. Because of its bulky nature, horses and mules doing
hard work should not be fed large quantities of silage, but due to its
laxative, tonic, and appetizing effect,
it is well suited for the maintenance
of idle horses and mules, brood mares
and growing stock. When used, silage
should be introduced gradually into
the ration and the amount fed should generally not exceed 10 to 15 pounds
daily per animal.

Boys' Pig Clubs Growing in Popularity in West

When the Colorado club boy's pig grows into a fat hog he finds a good
market at the Western National Live Stock show. Beginning with 1921, the exhibiting and sale of fat hogs fed by club boys following the methods advocated by extension workers and
shipped co-operatively in carload lots,
has been one of the features of this show. Last year four carloads were exhibited by these young stockmen, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, and later
auctioned off. Two carloads of straight
Duroc-Jerseys, one car of Poland-
Chinas, and one car of mixed Poland-Chinas and Durocs were included. The carload receiving first prize sold for
the highest price paid for any carload
in the entire show and the other three brought top prices.

Sweet Clover Superior for Building Up Soil

Sweet clover is truly a wonderful
plant, and has done more for the up-
building of poor, worn-out soil than any other plant. It is a wonderful soil builder, a soil renovator, and a splendid pasture crop, and while it is making an abundance of feed it is building up the soil to a greater extent than is possible for any other crop to build up the soil. The poorer
the soil the more thrifty grows the sweet clover plant—it seemingly
being a God-given soil-builder for the depleted soils of the country.

Plaster Silo Inside to Prevent Juices Leaking

Cement stave, cement block and clay
tile silos should all be well plastered
on the inside to prevent the juices from
leaking out through the mortar joints.
Two coats of rich cement mortar
should be used in most cases. If the juices of the silage get into the mortar joints and freeze there is apt to
be trouble.

Destruction of Trees by Fires Is Criminal

Save the trees. Grow more trees.
Plant a tree and watch it grow into money while you sleep. It takes many years to grow a big tree, but it only takes a few minutes to destroy it by fire. The destruction by forest fires is criminal. Some way should be developed to prevent this colossal waste.

Nutritive Value of Apples.

Most people know apples are healthful. But a great many do not know that they are among the most nutritious of fruits and that their value in this way is higher than that of many every day foods commonly regarded as about the most nutritious. The nutritive value of potatoes and as everyone knows, potatoes are a solid and dependable food.

* SOCIAL CALENDAR *

About 55 relatives of the Grove and Miller families met at the home of John Miller in Columbus, August 19, with well filled baskets and at noon all went to Franklin park, where long tables were spread and all enjoyed all that was good to eat. LIPTON TO TRY AGAIN

Will Build Another Challenger and Call it the Shamrock.

New York, Aug. 21.—Sir Thomas Lipton arrived on the Cedric with the announcement that once more he will try to lift the Americas cup. "Of course I'll build another challenger," said Sir Thomas. "And just as much, of course," he added, "I'll call her the Shamrock. This will be No. 5 and we'll race in 1925. I think the cup ought to be homesick by now, and will relish a little 'vacation' back home; that is providing Shamrock V can lift it. I am here primarily this trip to look over the 55 metre Shamrock, which will be tuned up and sailed back to British waters to enter the races around the British coast."

YOUNG GIRLS ASSAULTED

Thurman A. Betts and T. W. Timmons Charged With Crime.

Pearl Faler and Mary Wagner Accepted Invitation to Ride in Auto and Are Victims of Assault in Carpenter Woods Near Darbyville.

One of the worst cases of human depravity in the history of this county, was enacted in the Scott Carpenter woods, one mile east of Darbyville, about eleven o'clock Monday evening. Shortly after that hour the quiet, little hamlet was thrown into a fever of excitement by a young lady who came into the town screaming at the top of her voice and fainted on the porch of Orpha Moore. As soon as she recovered consciousness she said: "My name is Pearl Faler. While going towards home in Columbus, in company with Miss Mary Wagner we were accosted on the street by two young men, who were driving a Chevrolet sedan. They said they would take us home. The car came up to the curb and we got in, but instead of taking us home they said that they would give us a little ride first and we did not object."

"We stopped on the road once, as the driver said he wanted to let the engine cool. While we were waiting one of the men suggested to Mary Wagner that they walk up the road. They got out and disappeared in the moonlight and while they were gone the other man made an indecent proposal to me. I got a hold of the auto crank and defended myself the best I knew how and ran towards this town, as I saw lights in the distance." Dr. F. E. Ginder, who gave the girl medical attendance, notified the sheriff. The call was answered by Deputy Sheriff Howard Irwin, who when he arrived on the scene, found that a posse had formed and armed clubs and guns had started out on the hunt of the two men. They found Thurman A. Betts, of Columbus, sitting in his car and T. W. Timmons, also of Columbus, and Mary Wagner in the Scott Carpenter woods. He had accomplished his purpose. The girl's garments were nearly torn off and she suffered severely by the rough handling she was forced to endure. She was brought to this city and was given medical attention by Dr. G. W. Heffner.

After the posse had secured Timmons and brought him back to Darbyville, he said that he had lost his pocketbook and on this pretext escaped. When Deputy Sheriff Irwin arrived, he gave chase and got his man just as he was entering Commercial Point. Both of the accused were brought to this city and were placed in the county jail for safekeeping.

Both of the young women have returned to their homes in Columbus. Mary Wagner who is 18 years old, filed an affidavit against T. W. Timmons, charging him with rape and Pearl Faler, 19, has filed an affidavit charging Thurman A. Betts with assault with intent to commit rape. The affidavits were filed with Justice E. C. Friece.

LABOR DAY

Governor Vic Donahey Will Attend the Cincinnati Fall Festival.

Labor Day will be the biggest day of the Cincinnati Fall Festival and Industrial exposition, according to Warner Sayers, festival president, who expects local records for the largest crowd to be broken on that day.

Thousands of labor leaders will be in the city on Labor day to assist in the dedication of the new Brotherhood of Railway Clerks Bank, and will visit the festival in a body after the dedication exercises. In addition many out of town labor unions will celebrate Labor Day at the Cincinnati festival.

Governor Donahey of Ohio, will be the guest of honor and will be accompanied by his entire staff, who will motor from Columbus. He will speak in Music Hall in the evening.

Special exercises will be held in the Court of Honor, where many prominent labor leaders will sound the keynote of labor policies. Many special amusement attractions will be added to the regular program and an extra ground force will be put on to take care of the additional crowds.
